FOREWORD

To analyze and describe the permanently valuable records of the Federal Government preserved in the National Archives Building is one of the main tasks of the National Archives. Various kinds of finding aids are needed to facilitate the use of these records, and the first step in the records-description program is the compilation of preliminary inventories of the material in the almost 300 record groups to which the holdings of the National Archives are allocated.

These inventories are called "preliminary" because they are provisional in character. They are prepared as soon as possible after the records are received without waiting to screen out all disposable material or to perfect the arrangement of the records. They are compiled primarily for internal use, both as finding aids to help the staff render efficient reference service and as a means of establishing administrative control over the records.

Each preliminary inventory contains an introduction that briefly states the history and functions of the agency that accumulated the records. The records themselves are described series by series, that is, by units of records of the same form or that deal with the same subject or activity or that are arranged serially. Other significant information about the records may sometimes be given in appendixes.

When the record group has been studied sufficiently and the records have been placed in final order, the preliminary inventories will be revised and the word "preliminary" dropped from the title of the revision. Meanwhile, as occasion demands and time permits, special reports, indexes, calendars, and other finding aids to the record group will be prepared.

Several finding aids that give an overall picture of materials in the National Archives have been published. A comprehensive Guide to the Records in the National Archives (1948) and a brief guide, Your Government's Records in the National Archives (revised 1950), have been issued. Forty-four Reference Information Papers, which analyze records in the National Archives on such subjects as transportation, small business, and the Middle East, have so far been issued. Records of World War I have been described in the Handbook of Federal World War Agencies and Their Records, 1917-1921, and those of World War II in the two-volume guide, Federal Records of World War II (1950-51). Many bodies of records of high research value have been edited by the National Archives and reproduced on microfilm as a form of publication. Positive prints of some 9,000 rolls of this microfilm, most of which are described in the List of National Archives Microfilm Publications (1953), are now available for purchase.

INTRODUCTION

The United States House of Representatives, often referred to as the lower House or as simply the House, was established by article I, section 1, of the Constitution, which provides that "All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives." Section 2, as amended by section 2 of the 14th amendment, stipulates that "Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed." The section further provides that Members of the House shall be chosen every second year by the people of the several States and that the House shall choose its speaker and other officers. Section 4, as amended by the 20th amendment, provides that the Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, beginning at noon on the third day of January unless a different day is designated by law.

Section 7 of article I provides that "All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills." No express provision vests in the House the sole power to originate general appropriation bills, but customarily such bills originate there. The Senate exercises the same power to amend or approve appropriation bills that it does in relation to revenue bills.

In addition to the legislative function, the Constitution vests certain other powers in the House of Representatives. Article I, section 2, provides that the House "shall have the sole Power of Impeachment," that is, the bringing of charges against the President and other public officials for trial before the Senate; and section 5 provides that "Each House shall be the Judge of the Elections, Returns, and Qualifications of its own Members." The 12th amendment provides that the electors for President and Vice President in each State shall transmit their votes to the President of the Senate, who shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all such votes to be counted. The 12th amendment also gives the House the power to elect a President should no candidate receive a majority of the votes of the whole number of electors.

Provision is also made in article I, section 5, for each House to determine its rules of procedure, to compel the attendance of absent Members, and to punish its Members for disorderly behavior. Each House keeps bill books, accounts, registers, indexes, and other administrative records and, under its rule-making power, makes rules for the preservation and control of its records.

The first session of the Congress of the United States, under a resolution passed by the Congress of the Confederation, on September 13, 1788, was called to meet in New York City on March 4, 1789. On the appointed day only 13 Members of the House were present and, as this number did not constitute a quorum, the sessions were adjourned from day to day until April

1, when a majority of the Members made their appearance.¹ The House thereupon elected Frederick Augustus Muhlenberg as its Speaker, and John Beckley as its Clerk. On April 6 the House was notified that a quorum of the Senate had assembled, whereupon the House withdrew to the Senate chamber where the electoral votes for President and Vice President were counted jointly. On April 7 the House adopted rules and orders for the conduct of its business, and on April 8 the Chief Justice of the State of New York administered the oath of office to all House Members who were present.

The first and second sessions of the First Congress were held in New York City, but the third session, which began on December 6, 1790, was held in Philadelphia. Congress continued to meet there until it moved to the new Capitol in Washington for the opening of the second session of the Sixth Congress on November 17, 1800. The House occupied a room in the south end of the new building.

Both Houses were forced to vacate their chambers temporarily in 1814, when the British burned the Capitol Building. The Congress met first in Blodgett's Hotel on E Street between Seventh and Eighth Streets NW., and later in larger quarters erected for its use at the corner of First Street and Maryland Avenue NE., on the site now occupied by the Supreme Court Building. After the Capitol was restored both Houses returned to their respective quarters for the opening of the 1st session of the 16th Congress on December 6, 1819.

The House continued to occupy the chamber originally provided for its use until December 16, 1857, when it moved into a much larger chamber in the newly constructed House wing. Since that time the old chamber has been used to house statues of famous Americans and has been known as Statuary Hall.

The general organization and nature of the House of Representatives have changed little since 1789. The House is a new body at the beginning of each Congress, since all its Members are elected every 2 years and none of them carry over from one Congress to another except by reelection.

Much of the work of the House is done in committees. In the early years most legislation was handled by special committees appointed by the Speaker, although there were more standing committees in the House than in the Senate. Two standing committees of the House were created in 1789 and others were added until in 1816 there were 14 such committees. The number of standing committees gradually increased to 47 in 1946, but the Legislative Reorganization Act of that year (60 Stat. 812) reduced their number to 19.

¹For the record of the organization meetings of the House of Representatives, see the House Journal, 1st Cong., 1st sess., p. 3-11.

In addition to the standing committees of each House, there are special and joint committees. Special (or select) committees are created by resolution to consider matters that are outside the authority of standing committees or that require extensive study. Special committees automatically cease to exist after they have completed the studies they were created to conduct. Joint committees consist of Members of both Houses. Some joint committees are standing committees and others are special. The Congressional Directory, which appears periodically, lists the special House and special joint committees, as well as the standing House and standing joint committees in each Congress.

Records of the House of Representatives were transferred from New York to Philadelphia in 1790 and from Philadelphia to Washington in 1800. The early records of the House are rather incomplete. It is possible that some records were lost in these moves, and others may have been lost as the result of inadequate filing space and the carelessness of early custodians.² Still more were lost when the British burned the Capitol in 1814. A letter written on September 15, 1814, to the Clerk of the House, Patrick Magruder, by two of his subordinates, S. Burch and J. T. Frost, explains in some detail what records were lost on that occasion. They wrote in part:³

[We were ordered] not to begin packing up until it was ascertained that the clerks of the War Office were engaged in that business; and it was not until 12 o'clock, on Monday, the 22d, that we were informed that they had begun to move the effects of that office, although we were subsequently told that it had commenced the day before.

We immediately went to packing up, and Mr. Burch went out in search of wagons or other carriages, for the transportation of the books and papers; every wagon, and almost every cart, belonging to the city, had been previously impressed into the service of the United States, for the transportation of the baggage of the army; the few he was able to find were loaded with the private effects of individuals, who were moving without the city; those he attempted to hire, but, not succeeding, he claimed a right to impress them; but, having no legal authority, or military force to aid him, he, of course, did not succeed. He then sent off three messengers into the country, one of whom obtained from Mr. John Wilson, whose residence is six miles from the city, the use of a cart and four oxen; it did not arrive at the office, until after dark on Monday night, when it was immediately laden with the most valuable records and papers, which were taken, on the same night, nine miles, to a safe and secret place in the country. We continued to remove as many of the most valuable books and papers, having removed the manuscript records, as we were able to do with our one cart, until the morning of the day of the battle of Bladensburg, after which we were unable to take away anything further.

Every thing belonging to the office, together with the library of Congress, we venture to say, might have been removed in time, if carriages could have been procured; but it was altogether impossible to procure them, either for hire, or by force.

The most material papers which have been lost are, the last volumes of the manuscript records of the Committees of Ways and Means, Claims, and Pensions and Revolutionary Claims; the clerks were engaged in bringing up these records previous to the alarm, and as it was not certain that the enemy would get to the city, and being desirous to have them completed, they were not packed away with the rest, but were kept out, that they might be finished by the meeting of Congress; but with the intention of taking them to a private residence, if such removal should be found necessary. After the defeat of our troops at Bladensburg, Mr. Frost removed them to the house commonly called General Washington's, which house being unexpectedly consumed by fire, these records were thus unfortunately lost.

The secret journal of Congress was also consumed; it was kept in a private drawer in the office, and in the hurry of removal was forgotten. Its contents, however, have been, in most cases, published by order of the House.

The manuscript papers, which have not been saved, were mostly of a private nature, consisting chiefly of petitions, and unimportant papers, presented previous to the year 1799.

This letter was transmitted by the Clerk to the Speaker of the House, together with the explanation that the Clerk himself had been absent from the city since he had left home "the latter part of July, for the Springs, on account of indisposition."⁴ The committee to which this matter was referred reported that it was "constrained to express the opinion that due ⁴Ibid., Doc. 371, p. 245.

precaution and diligence were not exercised to prevent the destruction and loss which has been sustained."⁵ Although the Clerk sent another letter on December 17, 1814, to the Speaker, explaining more fully the reasons for his absence from Washington,⁶ the committee entertained "the same opinion which they before expressed."⁷ Consequently the Clerk submitted his resignation on January 28, 1815.⁸

The concern then expressed by the House for its records grew with the years until it came to hold them with jealous regard. In 1880 the House strengthened its control over its records with the adoption of House Rule 36, which provides that:⁹

The clerks of the several committees of the House shall, within three days after the final adjournment of a Congress, deliver to the Clerk of the House all bills, joint resolutions, petitions, and other papers referred to the committee, together with all evidence taken by such committee under the order of the House during the said Congress and not reported to the House; and in the event of the failure or neglect of any clerk of a committee to comply with this rule the Clerk of the House shall, within three days thereafter, take into his keeping all such papers and testimony.

Because of the periodic flow of committee records to the Clerk's custody, a staff sufficiently large to handle current business was maintained, but the problem of caring for and managing older records became increasingly acute. Walter H. French, who was the House file clerk during the latter part of the 19th century, gave considerable attention to this problem. Although he did not have adequate space or equipment to care for the records properly, he gave freely of his own time to keep the records of the House intact and orderly.

The space situation was relieved somewhat when, in accordance with an appropriation act approved on June 6, 1900, bound volumes of original House records were transferred to the Library of Congress in January 1901.¹⁰ Loose papers remained with the Clerk until 1910, when the House adopted a resolution authorizing him to deposit all original letters and papers of historical value for preservation in the Library of Congress. These papers were to remain a part of the files of the House of Representatives, subject to removal or withdrawal only by its order (H. Res. 403, 61st Cong.). The papers selected as having historical value and being suitable for transfer were largely for the period before 1871 and amounted to about 89 cubic feet.

Another segregation of House papers occurred as the result of an act approved March 3, 1925, which authorized the Chief of the Division of Publications of the Department of State to collect, edit, copy, and prepare for publication the official papers relating to the Territories from which States had been formed. Accordingly, about 25 cubic feet of House papers that related to the Territories were withdrawn from the files and removed to the Library of Congress for easy access.

Removal of records to the Library of Congress and the efforts of House employees failed, however, to solve the space problem. Others took up the work where Mr. French had left off. William Tyler Page and South Trimble, Clerks of the House; William Hertzler, House file clerk; and H. Newlin Megill, assistant to the Clerk of the House, contributed greatly to the preservation of the records. Mr. Megill devoted much time and effort to the better organization, listing, and storage of the older House records, and, in doing so, better utilized the space available for the storage of records.

Early in 1937, T. R. Schellenberg, then a deputy examiner for the National Archives, made a comprehensive survey of the records of the House and recommended their transfer to the National Archives.¹¹ Although the Senate ordered the transfer of its records that year, the House failed to take similar action.

Some steps were taken, however, to provide better storage facilities and greater protection for the older records of the House, and additional loose papers and bound volumes of records were transferred to the Library of Congress in 1937 and 1938. The Third Supplemental National Defense Appropriation Act, 1942, approved December 17, 1941, appropriated $25,000 to enable the Architect of the Capitol to construct a depository for records beneath the crypt in the center of the Capitol Building (55 Stat. 817). This act was amended by the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, approved June 8, 1942, which authorized the Architect of the Capitol to erect a vault in the Annex of the Library of Congress (56 Stat. 342); and the First Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1944, approved April 1, 1944, appropriated $1,000 for the removal of documents from the Manuscripts Division and the Old House Office Building, to the newly constructed vault (58 Stat. 151). The deposit of these records in the vault early in 1944 was an important step toward bringing the older records of the House together.

The next important step in the concentration of the House records was the passage of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 812), one section of which reads as follows:

¹¹H. Rept. 917, 75th Cong., 1st sess.

Sec. 140(a) The Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives are authorized and directed, acting jointly, to obtain at the close of each Congress all of the noncurrent records of the Congress and of each committee thereof and transfer them to the National Archives for preservation, subject to the orders of the Senate or the House, respectively.

(b) The Clerk of the House of Representatives is authorized and directed to collect all of the noncurrent records of the House of Representatives from the First to the Seventy-sixth Congress, inclusive, and transfer such records to the National Archives for preservation, subject to the orders of the Senate or the House, respectively.

In accordance with this act the records of the House from the 1st through the 76th Congress, amounting to about 7,500 cubic feet, were transferred to the National Archives in September and October 1946. As the act was passed during the 79th Congress, it was interpreted to mean that the House was to keep in its own custody the records of two Congresses before the current Congress. Since that time, as each Congress has ended, the House has transferred to the National Archives the records of the oldest Congress in its custody. By the end of 1954 the records of 81 Congresses had been deposited in the National Archives and their volume exceeded 10,000 cubic feet.

Although the physical custody of these records is now the responsibility of the National Archives, the records are still "subject to the orders of . . . the House." This control is in line with a precedent set in 1879, when Ferris Finch, then file clerk of the House, was served with a subpoena to appear before a general court-martial in New York City and to produce certain testimony given before the House Committee on Military Affairs. The matter was referred to the House Judiciary Committee, which on April 22, 1879, submitted a report and a resolution, the resolution providing:¹²

1. That no officer or employé of the House of Representatives has the right either voluntarily or in obedience to a subpoena duces tecum to produce any document, paper, or book belonging to the files of the House before any court or officer, nor to permit any copy of any testimony given or paper filed in any investigation before the House or any of its committees, or of any other paper belonging to the files of the House, except such as may be authorized by statute to be copied, and such as the House itself may have made public, to be taken without the consent of the House first obtained.

¹²House Journal, 46th Cong., 1st sess., p. 186.

The resolution further provided that copies of the records in this case could be provided "but that the originals thereof shall not be removed from the files of the House." This rule has been reiterated many times.

The House records deposited in the National Archives are restricted. The National Archives may make available for use only those records that have heretofore been printed, unless otherwise directed by action of the House of Representatives by resolution or statute, or in writing by the Clerk. The unrestricted material amounts to a large quantity, however, and includes such diverse types of records as bills and resolutions, committee reports and hearings, House documents, and certain Territorial papers.

Before the National Archives could give adequate service on the House records, it had to place them in proper order. As they had been moved from place to place in the Capitol and the House Office Building in an effort to make room for new accumulations of records, they had become disarranged. Confusion resulted from changes in filing systems. The records that had been transferred to the Library of Congress needed to be refiled in their proper places among the other records. Examining, sorting, classifying, and properly arranging all the records was a tremendous task. For it has been estimated that there are about three million separate items--an item being any separable and distinct paper such as a letter, a report, a petition, a bill, or a volume--among the records of the first 79 Congresses.

Bound volumes of House records presented one of the greatest problems. Beginning with the First Congress the House bound a greater proportion of its records than did the Senate, and for some time it bound them without regard to type or origin so that many volumes were mere heterogeneous collections. Hundreds of volumes were mislabeled and by the time they came to the National Archives many others had lost all traces of identification through deterioration. The identification and, in some cases, the complete reassembling of like materials into new volumes for rebinding and relabeling at the Government Printing Office was a slow and painstaking process. Even individual documents within volumes had to be traced through the House Journals for proper identification.

Because of the House's appreciation of the enormousness of the project the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1948, provided for additional personnel in the National Archives to carry it on. John Andrews, then Clerk of the House, his assistant, H. Newlin Megill, and William Duvall and Kenneth Sprankle of the staff of the House Appropriations Committee visited the National Archives to inspect the progress of the work and to make suggestion about the way it should be done. The present Clerk of the House, Ralph R. Roberts, has shown great interest in the work also. With the help of the additional personnel and the experience gained in similar work on the Senate records, it has been possible to organize the House records more quickly and efficiently than was the case with those of the Senate.

The records described in this inventory are those of the first 79 Congresses, 1789-1946, amounting to about 9,100 cubic feet. They consist almost wholly of those pertaining to the official business of the House that were filed with the Clerk of the House or that were created by his Office. One does not, therefore, find described here the papers of the Speaker of the House or the personnel and financial records of the Clerk (with minor exceptions) and the Sergeant at Arms. Nor are the papers of individual House Members described here. In the past there was some confusion and uncertainty concerning the distinction between committee and other public records of Congress and those that pertained solely to the business of a Member's office. To clarify this situation the following provision was included in the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946:

All committee hearings, records, data, charts, and files shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the Member serving as chairman of the committee; and such records shall be the property of the Congress and all members of the committee and the respective Houses shall have access to such records.

Some committees have retained for their current use records of the 79th and earlier Congresses.

In the inventory records are grouped first by Congresses and then, in accordance with the major functions of the House, under the following headings: (1) records of legislative proceedings, (2) records of impeachment proceedings, and (3) records of the Office of the Clerk. Records of legislative proceedings include minute books and journals, bills and resolutions, committee reports and papers, messages from the President, reports and communications from Government agencies, and petitions and memorials. Election records have also been filed with the legislative records for convenience. Impeachment records include petitions and letters making accusations against officeholders, and letters, reports, and other documents that could be used as bases for drafting articles of impeachment. Records of the Office of the Clerk include bill books, records of orders of the day, various kinds of registers, printing accounts, and copies of correspondence of the Clerk.

The symbols assigned to the records in the inventory were devised by the National Archives to signify, in the order named, the Congress, one of the three major functions, and further subdivisions. This system is similar to the one used for the classification of Senate records. The records are arranged in the same order in which they are listed. When the records to which one symbol is assigned have an arrangement within themselves, that arrangement is specified.

When the records described in an entry consist entirely of bound volumes, the number of volumes is given in the entry heading. When the records consist of only unbound material or of both bound and unbound material, only the linear measurement is given.

Closely related to the records of the House are records of joint committees of Congress. They have been assigned by the National Archives to Record Group 128, Records of Joint Committees of Congress, and thus are not described in this inventory. Also closely related are records of the Senate, Record Group 46, which have been described in Preliminary Inventory No. 23 (1950. 284 p.).

Separate inventories are being prepared of the records of some of the special committees of the House of Representatives and also of some standing committee records. Inventories thus far published appear in the list of references.

In addition to the men whose names appear on the title page as compilers of this inventory, George P. Perros, José D. Lizardo, and James C. Brown participated in arranging the records and drafted some of the series entries.

APPENDIX I

GLOSSARY

Accompanying papers: Petitions, affidavits, letters, and other papers that support or oppose claims for damages, pensions, or other forms of relief for which a private bill was introduced, and, frequently, papers relating to public bills. Accompanying papers did not appear as a separate series until the 39th Congress but were filed with committee papers.

Act: (1) As used by Congress, a bill that has been passed by one or both Houses of Congress. (2) As commonly used, a bill that has been passed by both Houses of Congress and that has been signed by the President or passed over his veto.

Agree to: To act favorably on an amendment to a bill, a simple resolution, a concurrent resolution, or a motion. See also pass.

Amendment: (1) A change made in proposed legislation after it has been formally introduced. An amendment may be proposed by the committee to which the legislation was referred or it may be proposed from the floor of either House when it is brought up for consideration. All amendments must be agreed to by a majority of the members voting. (2) A change in the Constitution. Such an amendment is usually proposed in the form of a joint resolution of Congress, which may originate in either House. If passed, it does not go to the President for his approval but is submitted directly to the States for ratification.

Bill: A written presentation to a legislative body proposing certain legislation for enactment into law. Bills may originate in either House, except as noted below, and must be passed by both Houses and approved by the President before they become law or, if disapproved by the President, must be passed over his veto by two-thirds of each House. Bills for raising revenue, according to the Constitution, must originate in the House of Representatives and bills for appropriating money customarily originate in the House. Bills are referred to in the manner H. R. 120, 70th Cong., 1st sess. See also calendar copy of a bill, desk copy of a bill, engrossed bill, enrolled bill, original bill, and reported copy of a bill.

Bill book: A book in which all actions on bills are entered at the time they occur. The bill book provides immediate information on the status of any given bill. It is kept by the Bill Clerk, who is under the jurisdiction of the Clerk of the House.

Calendar: A record of the order in which bills are to be taken up for consideration. See also Committee Calendar, Consent Calendar, House Calendar, Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees, Private Calendar, and Union Calendar.

Calendar copy of a bill: The copy of a bill that has been reported out of a committee and placed on a calendar. It contains committee amendments and bears the committee report number and the calendar number.

Calendar of Motions to Discharge Committees: A calendar on which are entered motions to remove bills or joint resolutions from further consideration by the committees to which they were referred. See also motions to discharge.

Certificates of election: See credentials of Representatives.

Clerk of the House: The chief administrative officer of the House. The Clerk acts as presiding officer pending the election of a Speaker; makes up the roll of House Members from certificates of election; makes up and publishes a list of reports that are, by law, to be submitted to Congress; prepares and prints the journal; certifies the passage of bills and resolutions; attests and seals warrants and subpoenas; keeps contingent and stationery accounts; acts as custodian of property; pays the salaries of all House personnel except those of Members and Delegates; is custodian of all noncurrent records; and supervises the House Library.

Committee: A body of Members, usually limited in number, appointed under House rules or by resolution, to consider some matter of business and to report thereon to the House for further action. See also Committee of the Whole House, conference committee, joint committee, select committee, special committee, standing committee, and subcommittee.

Committee calendar: A calendar that is used by a committee to record bills and joint resolutions referred to it and to indicate the order in which they are taken up for consideration. Committees sometimes include additional information in their calendar. See also docket.

Committee of the Whole House: A committee that is formed by the House resolving itself into a committee. A Committee of the Whole House can act with a quorum of only 100 members instead of the 218 required for action by the House itself. Any legislation favorably acted on by the Committee of the Whole House must be reported to the House for further action.

Committee papers: Papers that are created by a committee or received by it in the course of considering proposed legislation or in conducting investigations that may assist in formulating legislation. They may consist of correspondence, hearings, reports, minutes of meetings, dockets, calendars, and miscellaneous work papers. Such papers that relate to private bills and some such papers that relate to public bills have, since the 39th Congress, been filed as "accompanying papers."

Committee print: The print of a report, bill, or other matter before a committee that is not intended for distribution but for the use of the committee only. Such prints bear no numbers and usually are not made public.

Concurrent resolution: A resolution that is similar to a simple resolution except that it indicates joint action and requires the concurrence of the other House. It contains no legislation and its authority does not extend beyond Congress. It is used, for example, to set the time for a sine die adjournment, to correct enrolled bills, to express the will of Congress, and to create special joint committees. It does not require Presidential approval. Concurrent resolutions are usually printed and are assigned numbers by the House of origin. They are referred to in the manner H. Con. Res. 25, 70th Cong., 1st sess

Conference: A meeting of representatives of the two Houses for the purpose of reaching an agreement on conflicting views on bills and joint resolutions or parts thereof.

Conference committee: A committee appointed by the Speaker and the President of the Senate composed usually of the ranking members of the committees of each House that originally considered the legislation in disagreement. The members on the part of the House of Representatives are referred to as "managers" and those on the part of the Senate as "conferees." The purpose of the committee is to consider the points of conflict between the two Houses on a specific bill or joint resolution with the view of reaching an agreement.

Congress: (1) The national legislature as a whole, including both the House and the Senate. (2) The united body of Senators and Representatives for any term of 2 years for which the whole body is chosen. A Congress lasts for a period of 2 years and usually has two sessions, but it may consist of three or more sessions. A regular session of Congress begins on the third day of January of each year and a new Congress begins on the third day of January of every odd year. Before the adoption of the 20th amendment to the Constitution in 1933, a session of Congress began on the first Monday in December of each year, each odd year marking the beginning of a new Congress.

Consent Calendar: A calendar on which a bill or joint resolution that has been favorably reported and placed on either the House or Union Calendar may be placed by any Member to hasten its consideration by the House. On the first and third Mondays of each month, immediately after the reading of the journal, the Speaker directs the Clerk to call the bills in numerical order which have been on the Consent Calendar for 3 legislative days. Should objection be made to the consideration of a bill so called it is carried over on the calendar without prejudice to the next day that the Consent Calendar is again called. If it is then objected to by three or more Members, it is immediately stricken from the calendar and is not placed on it again during the same session of that Congress. No bill is called twice on the same legislative day.

Contingent fund: A sum appropriated for miscellaneous expenses, to be drawn on for lawful contingencies.

Credentials of Representatives: Certificates of election of Members of the House. Properly executed certificates are prima facie evidence of the lawful election of Members entitling them to their respective seats. Section 4 of article 1 of the Constitution gives the House the power to judge elections, returns, and qualifications of its own Members.

Daybook: A daily record of financial transactions of the Clerk's Office.

Desk copy of bill: The calendar copy of a bill used at the desk by the Reading Clerk, on which are recorded actions taken on the bill. This copy becomes the rough copy of the bill from which the engrossed copy is made.

Docket: A book in which are registered all matters referred to a committee for its consideration, together with the actions taken on them. See also Committee calendar.

Document: (1) Any paper that conveys information. (2) Beginning with the 15th Congress the printed copy of material that was printed by order of the House or the Senate. Printed documents consisted from the 30th Congress through the 53d, of two kinds, namely, miscellaneous and executive, which see. This distinction has disappeared and such documents at present are referred to in the manner H. Doc. 25, 60th Cong., 1st sess.

Electoral college: See electors.

Electoral vote: The vote cast by an elector for the President of the United States.

Electors: Those chosen by vote of the people to the electoral college, the function of which is to elect the President of the United States. Each State has as many electors as it has Members of the House of Representatives plus its two Members of the Senate. For example, if a State has 15 Members in the House, it has a total of 17 electors or electoral votes.

Endorsement: The writing on the outside or cover of a bill, report, petition or memorial, or other document, giving a brief description of the document, by whom submitted or presented, date of referral, the name of the committee to which it was referred, or other disposition that might have been made.

Engrossed bill: A bill that has passed the House of origin and is sent to the other House for further action, or having passed the other House also, is sent back to the House of origin for enrollment. The engrossed copy of a bill that has passed both Houses together with its engrossed amendments is the official working copy from which an enrolled bill is prepared.

Enrolled bill: The final draft of an engrossed bill that has passed both Houses, embodying all amendments. Such a bill is enrolled on paper (formerly on parchment) and is signed first by the Speaker of the House and secondly by the President of the Senate. On the back is an attestation by the Clerk of the House or the Secretary of the Senate, as the case may be, indicating the House of origin. This final draft is then presented to the President for his approval or disapproval. Some enrolled bills that were vetoed are among the records of the House of Representatives. Approved bills are in the National Archives, those approved before May 24, 1950, having been received from the Secretary of State and those after that date from the Federal Register Division.

Executive Department: One of the major functional subdivisions of the executive branch of the Government, the head of which is a member of the President's Cabinet. See also independent agency.

Executive Document: A document that originated with an agency in the executive branch of the Government and was printed by order of the House or the Senate. House Executive Documents were numbered in each Congress and were designated in the manner H. Ex. Doc. 49th, 40th Cong., 1st sess. In 1895 the series was consolidated with the Miscellaneous Document series, and the resulting series became known as House Documents. See also document.

Executive hearings: (1) Hearings that are held behind closed doors and not open to the public. (2) The recorded testimony presented at such hearings is rarely, if ever, printed. It usually exists only in handwritten or typescript form and is available for examination only by properly authorized persons. See also hearings and public hearings.

Federal: Pertaining to a union of States under a common government with limited powers. As commonly used, the word refers to the United States Government, which is often spoken of as the "Federal Government."

Fiscal Year: The 12-month period used in accounting for the receipt and expenditure of funds from the United States Treasury, beginning on July 1 of one calendar year and ending on June 30 of the next.

Government: As used in this inventory, the Government of the United States. Usually when other "governments" are referred to, they are indicated as "State government," "county government," or "city government."

Hearings: (1) Meetings of committees at which interested parties give testimony during the consideration of proposed legislation or during the conduct of investigations. Only a small proportion of all bills introduced are sufficiently important to warrant the holding of formal hearings. Hearings are of two kinds, namely, executive hearings and public hearings, which see. (2) The recorded testimony presented at such hearings.

Hopper: The container in which bills are placed when introduced. Placing a bill in the hopper is another way of saying that a bill has been introduced.

House Calendar: A calendar on which are placed all bills or joint resolutions of a public character not raising revenue nor directly nor indirectly appropriating money or property.

House Document: See document.

Impeachment: The bringing of charges by the House of Representatives against an official of the Government that question his right or qualifications to hold office. Maladministration or misconduct while in office is usually the basis of the charges. The trial of an impeached officer is conducted before the Senate with the Chief Justice of the United States presiding.

Independent agency: An agency of the executive branch of the Government that operates independently of an executive department. The head of an independent agency is not a member of the President's Cabinet.

Individual ledger: A volume which lists, under the name of each Member, all bills and resolutions introduced by that Member.

Joint committee: A committee consisting of Members of both Houses and having jurisdiction over matters of joint interest. Most joint committees are standing committees, but special joint committees are created at times.

Joint resolution: (1) A form of proposed legislation similar to a bill, which in former usage served a limited purpose or was temporary in its effect. In present usage, however, a joint resolution is almost identical to a bill. A joint resolution (except a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution) requires the signature of the President or passage over his veto before it becomes law. It is designated in the manner H. J. Res. 25, 70th Cong., 1st sess. Like bills, there may also be original joint resolutions, reported, calendar, and desk copies of joint resolutions, engrossed joint resolutions, and enrolled joint resolutions. (2) The approved joint resolution, which is treated as an act and which since 1941 has been numbered in the same series as acts that originated as bills.

Journal: The only official record of the proceedings on the floor of the House, which is read to the House each day and approved. The journal is printed, but the manuscript journals may be available in two forms, namely, rough and finished. The rough journal consists of the first draft of the proceedings that is drafted from the minute book, which see. The finished journal is generally prepared from the rough journal after it has been revised and corrected. The finished journal is used as copy for the printer.

Law: See private law and public law.

Lay on the table: See table.

Memorial: A document in the form of a petition, but which usually opposes a contemplated or proposed action. A memorial carries no prayer. Some petitions, especially those from State legislatures, are termed "memorials."

Minute book: (1) A book kept during the proceedings of the House that contains a brief outline of proceedings as they occur. The minute book is used to prepare the journal. (2) Committee book containing minutes of the committee's proceedings.

Miscellaneous Documents: Petitions, memorials, communications from non-Government sources, special reports, reports from independent agencies, and other miscellaneous documents that were ordered printed by the House. These were numbered in each Congress in the manner H. Misc. Doc. 23, 41st Cong., 1st sess. In 1895 this series was consolidated with the Executive Document series, and the resulting series became known simply as House Documents. See also document.

Motion: A proposal made to a deliberative body for its approval or disapproval. A motion may be made verbally, but the Speaker may require a House motion to be put in writing.

Motion to discharge: A motion to remove a bill or joint resolution from further consideration by the committee to which it was referred.

Newspaper book: A record of newspapers and periodicals furnished to Members of Congress through the Clerk's Office.

Order: A direction to carry out an action that has already been agreed to by the House.

Orders of the Day: Agreements to do certain things at given times on given days. They provided a method of disposing of certain business of the House, but they have now been abandoned as impractical.

Original bill: A bill in the form in which it was introduced, in handwritten or typewritten form or consisting of a printed copy of a like bill that had been introduced in an earlier Congress. The bill, after introduction, is assigned a number and is printed.

Pass: To act favorably on a bill or a joint resolution. See also agree to.

Petition: A written request to either House of Congress asking that something be done. A petition contains a prayer that the requested action be taken. See also memorial.

Petition book: A register in which the receipt of petitions and subsequent actions on them are recorded. This book is kept in the office of the Bill Clerk.

Pocket veto: See veto.

Private Calendar: A calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on which all bills or joint resolutions of a private character are placed. See also private law.

Private law: A law to grant a pension, authorize payment of a claim, or afford another form of relief to a private individual or legal entity.

Public hearings: (1) Hearings that are open to the public. (2) The recorded testimony presented at such hearings. It is usually printed and is distributed by the committee before which the hearings were held. See also hearings and executive hearings.

Public law: A law that is of universal application, that is clothed with any public interest, or that applies to a class of persons as opposed to a law that applies only to a specified individual or legal entity.

Quorum call: A roll call made for the purpose of determining the presence of a quorum, which is necessary for the transaction of business.

Refer: To assign a bill, communication, or other document to a committee for its consideration. The House journal indicates the committee to which any bill or document was referred.

Register: A list, kept currently, of documents received or actions taken.

Report: (1) To bring back to the House, with recommendations, a bill or other matter that was referred to a committee or that originated in the committee. (2) A report of a committee, or a report received from an executive agency or a non-Government source that is required to submit reports by law. Beginning with the 16th Congress, committee reports were printed in a separate series. They are usually numbered and indicate the bills or other matters to which they refer; they are identified in the manner H. Rept. 240, 70th Cong., 2d sess. Reports from executive agencies or other sources frequently are printed as House Documents. See also document.

Reported copy of a bill: The copy of a bill that has been reported out of a committee for consideration on the floor of the House. Such a bill is usually placed on one of the House calendars but may be brought up for immediate consideration without being placed on a calendar.

Resolution: See simple resolution, concurrent resolution, and joint resolution.

Roll call: (1) The calling of the roll for the purpose of determining the presence of a quorum or for recording the yeas and nays. (2) The record of roll calls taken. Roll calls are numbered in sequence and are retained in the files. See also quorum calls and yeas and nays.

Rough: Pertaining to a first draft from which a finished or "smooth" copy is transcribed or printed, as in rough journal.

Secret journal: A journal of proceedings that were ordered to be kept secret. The injunction of secrecy has been removed from the secret journals listed in the inventory.

Select committee: A committee appointed to perform a special function that is beyond the authority or capacity of a standing committee. A select committee is usually created by a simple resolution, which outlines its duties and powers, and its members are appointed by the Speaker. A select committee expires upon the completion of its assigned duties.

Sergeant at Arms: An officer of the House who maintains order during sessions of the House; executes the commands of the House, and processes issued by its authority; and keeps accounts for the salaries and mileage of Members and Delegates and pays them as provided by law. The symbol of his authority is the mace, which he bears while enforcing order. No records of the Sergeant at Arms are among House records in the National Archives.

Session: A meeting of the Congress that continues from day to day until a sine die adjournment. Two or more sessions may occur within the 2-year period covered by a Congress.

Simple resolution: A measure whose authority extends only to the House in which it originates. It does not contain legislation and does not require concurrence of the other House, or Presidential approval. Such resolutions are used to express the will of the House originating it, to create special committees, to authorize the printing of special reports or additional copies of reports or hearings, and to request information from administrative agencies. Simple resolutions are usually printed and assigned numbers and are referred to in the manner H. Res. 25, 75th Cong., 1st sess.

Speaker: A Member of the House elected by its membership as its permanent presiding officer. Unlike the President of the Senate, who is not a Member of that body, the Speaker can vote on all matters, but normally does not except in case of a tie vote.

Speaker pro tempore: A Member appointed by the Speaker to perform the duties of the Chair in his absence. Such appointments do not extend beyond 3 legislative days. In case of illness, the Speaker may, with the approval of the House, appoint a Speaker pro tempore for a period of 10 days. Under certain circumstances, the House may elect a Speaker pro tempore for the period of the Speaker's absence.

Special committee: A select committee.

Standing committee: A committee that is created under Rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives. Forty-four such committees existed before the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 reduced the number to 19. The powers and duties of each standing committee are set forth in Rule XI and the membership of each committee is elected on motion or resolution from the floor at the beginning of each Congress.

Statute: A law enacted by a legislative body. The laws enacted by Congress are contained in a series of volumes entitled Statutes at Large.

Subcommittee: A subdivision of a standing committee that considers specified matters and reports back to the full committee.

Table: To dispose of a matter finally and adversely without debate.

Union Calendar: A calendar of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, on which are placed bills raising revenue, general appropriation bills, and bills of a public character directly or indirectly appropriating money or property.

Veto: (1) To return a bill to Congress, without approval, within 10 days (Sunday excepted) after it is presented to the President. Such a bill is usually accompanied by a message stating the President's reasons for disapproval. (2) To disapprove a bill that is sent to the President less than 10 days before the adjournment of Congress by failing to sign it. (3) The act of disapproving a bill by either of the above methods. Disapproving a bill by the second method is termed a "pocket veto." Joint resolutions may be vetoed in the same ways.

Yeas and nays: The record of the vote on a matter by the Members of the House. See also roll call.

APPENDIX II

STANDING COMMITTEES OF THE UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, 1789-1954

Before the revision of the rules of the House of Representatives in 1880, the preposition for customarily appeared in the title, Committee for the District of Columbia; and the preposition of appeared in the titles, Committee of Accounts, Committee of Commerce, Committee of Elections, Committee of Ways and Means, Committee of Commerce and Manufactures, and Committee of Revisal and Unfinished Business. In the following list, as elsewhere in this inventory, the preposition on is uniformly employed for every standing committee both before and after 1880, except for one committee that did not survive to 1880, the Committee of Revisal and Unfinished Business.

The annotated text of the Constitution and its amendments are also contained in the House and Senate manuals.

The Laws of the United States

United States Statutes at Large. [1789- .]

Although the statutes had been published earlier, citations are commonly made to the 3d edition, of which Vols. 1-17, covering the first 42 Congresses (1789-1873), were published by Little, Brown, and Co.; Vol. 18, covering the 43d Congress (1873-75), and succeeding volumes were published by the Government. Vols. 1-49 cover varying periods, but beginning with Vol. 50 (1937) each volume usually contains laws enacted at a single session. Volumes are often issued in 2 or more parts.

United States Code, 1952 Edition. 1953. 6 vols.

Contains a consolidation and codification of the general and permanent laws of the United States in force on Jan. 2, 1953. Cumulative supplements are issued following each session of Congress. Supp. V (in 3 vols.) contains laws enacted during the 83d and 84th Congresses and the 85th Congress, 1st session.

A Synoptical Index to the Laws and Treaties of the United States of America, From March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1851. Prepared under the direction of the Secretary of the Senate. Boston, Little and Brown, 1852. 747 p.

This index contains citations to laws relating to specific localities, temporary statutes, and private acts, as well as to public laws.

[Scott and Beaman] Index Analysis of the Federal Statutes. 1908-11. 2 vols.

This is an index to only the general and permanent laws. Vol. I, by George W. Scott and Middleton G. Beaman, covers 1873-1907. The 2d vol., unnumbered, by Middleton G. Beaman and A. K. McNamara, covers 1789-1873.

Index to the Federal Statutes, 1874-1931. By Walter H. McClenon and Wilfred C. Gilbert. 1933. 1,432 p.
A revision of the Scott and Beaman Index Analysis.

Hinds' Precedents of the House of Representatives of the United States. By Asher C. Hinds. 1907-8. 8 vols. (59th Cong., 2d sess., H. Doc. 355; serial 5182-5188.)

Vols. I-V, published in 1907, contain the text, and Vols. VI-VIII, published in 1908, contain an index-digest.

Cannon's Precedents of the House of Representatives of the United States. By Clarence Cannon. 1935-41. 6 vols.

Vols. VI-VIII, published in 1935, cover the period 1907-35, continuing Hinds' Precedents, Vols. I-V, which were reprinted in 1935 from the original plates. Vols. IX-XI, published in 1941, are an index-digest to the complete work, superseding Vols. VI-VIII of Hinds' Precedents.

Cannon's Procedure in the House of Representatives. 1953. 505 p. (82d Cong., 2d sess., H. Doc. 562; serial 11612.)
An abbreviated manual.

Constitution, Jefferson's Manual, and Rules of the House of Representatives of the United States. By Lewis Deschler. 1953. 719 p. (82d Cong., 2d sess., H. Doc. 564; serial 11613.)
Generally known as the House Manual.

Senate Manual Containing the Standing Rules, Orders, Laws, and Resolutions Affecting the Business of the United States Senate. Prepared by W. F. Bookwalter and Darrell St. Claire. 1953. 732 p. (83d Cong., 1st sess., S. Doc. 10; serial 11669.)

Rules and Orders for Conducting Business in the House of Representatives of the United States, January 7, 1802, appear in the House Journal for the 7th Cong., 1st sess. (p. 38-42). A few years later it became House practice to print its contemporary rules in the appendix to the Journal for each session.

Individual Members of the House and Senate

Official Congressional Directory.

Generally issued for each session of Congress. A list of early directories, from 1809 to 1909, is given in the Checklist of United States Public Documents, p. 1616-1621.

INDEX

This index is a guide chiefly to the subject matter of the committee papers and of the petitions referred to committees, as listed in the inventory. It also is a guide to records of specific committees or specific types of records. References are to page numbers of the inventory or in some cases to Congresses. The index does not cover bills, reports, or Congressional documents individually, which are usually printed in the regular course of legislative business and are individually listed in the indexes to House Journals, the Congressional Record, and Congressional documents. Such printed indexes should be used in conjunction with this index to locate specific documents among the House records in the National Archives.

FOREWORD

To analyze and describe the permanently valuable records of the Federal Government preserved in the National Archives Building is one of the main tasks of the National Archives. Various kinds of finding aids are needed to facilitate the use of these records, and the first step in the records-description program is the compilation of preliminary inventories of the material in some 300 record groups to which the holdings of the National Archives are allocated.

These inventories are called "preliminary" because they are provisional in character. They are prepared as soon as possible after the records are received without waiting to screen out all disposable material or to perfect the arrangement of the records. They are compiled primarily for internal use, both as finding aids to help the staff render efficient reference service and as a means of establishing administrative control over the records.

Each preliminary inventory contains an introduction that briefly states the history and functions of the agency that accumulated the records. The records themselves are described series by series, that is, by units of records of the same form or that deal with the same subject or activity or that are arranged serially. Other significant information about the records may sometimes be given in appendixes.

When the record group has been studied sufficiently and the records have been placed in final order, the preliminary inventories will be revised and the word "preliminary" dropped from the title of the revision. Meanwhile, as occasion demands and time permits, special reports, indexes, calendars, and other finding aids to the record group will be prepared.

Several finding aids that give an overall picture of materials in the National Archives have been published. A comprehensive Guide to the Records in the National Archives (1948) and a brief guide, Your Government's Records in the National Archives (revised 1950), have been issued. Forty-four Reference Information Papers, which analyze records in the National Archives on such subjects as transportation, small business, and the Middle East, have so far been issued. Records of World War I have been described in the Handbook of Federal World War Agencies and Their Records, 1917-1921, and those of World War II in the two-volume guide, Federal Records of World War II (1950-51). Many bodies of records of high research value have been edited by the National Archives and reproduced on microfilm as a form of publication. Positive prints of some 9,000 rolls of this microfilm, most of which are described in the List of National Archives Microfilm Publications (1953), are now available for purchase.

INTRODUCTION

The Continental Congress established a national postal system on July 26, 1775, and selected Benjamin Franklin to serve as its first Postmaster General. The system was known as the General Post Office until the early 1820's, after which it was usually referred to as the Post Office Department although departmental status was not officially conferred until the passage of the organic act of June 8, 1872.

The Postmaster General was assisted at various times by Assistant Postmasters General, who were responsible for specified functions. By 1891 this functional organization had developed into four bureaus, each supervised by an Assistant Postmaster General. The Bureau of Accounts, established in 1921, and the Bureau of the Chief Inspector, established in 1939, completed the pattern of bureau organization that survived until the Department was reorganized on August 20, 1949, in accordance with the President's Reorganization Plan No. 3.

The records described in this inventory are a part of Record Group 28, Records of the Post Office Department, and amount to 737 cubic feet. They consist of all the records of the Bureaus of the Third and Fourth Assistant Postmasters General, the Bureau of Accounts, and the Bureau of the Chief Inspector that were in the National Archives on April 1, 1959. The records of the Office of the Postmaster General are described in Preliminary Inventory No. 99 and the records of the Bureaus of the First and Second Assistant Postmasters General are described in Preliminary Inventories Nos. 36 and 82, respectively.

The relatively small volume of extant records of the four bureaus covered by this inventory is accounted for by the fact that the Post Office Department has taken advantage of an act of 1881 (21 Stat. 412) and later acts, which provide for the disposition of useless papers by executive departments. The Department has disposed of nearly all of the administrative, supervisory, and operating records of the four bureaus, with the exception of those now in the National Archives and the current records retained by the Department. The tendency has been to retain records in summary form, to dispose of detailed records regarding individual post offices, and to publish detailed rules for the conduct of all post offices and their personnel in the Postal Manual (formerly in the Postal Guide), the Postal Bulletin, and the Postal Laws and Regulations. Some of the series described in this inventory are being preserved to illustrate the management techniques of the Department, for example entries 6, 43, 46, and 53.

The descriptions of the records of the four bureaus were prepared by Arthur Hecht and Fred W. Warriner, Jr., of the Industrial Records Division, National Archives, with the exception of entries 24 through 32 and related appendixes II, III, and IV, which were prepared by Charlotte M. Ashby of the Cartographic Records Division, National Archives.

RECORDS OF THE BUREAU OF THE THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL

An act of June 2, 1836 (5 Stat. 80), to provide more effectively for the settlement of the accounts of the Post Office Department authorized the appointment of a Third Assistant Postmaster General. The Postmaster General assigned to the Third Assistant the supervision of the newly established Inspection Office, which was authorized to review and report on mail-service contracts and to supervise postmasters. Letters commenting on the efficiency of contractors and the quarterly postage accounts of postmasters were also directed to this office.

By order of the Postmaster General in 1846 the Office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General was made responsible for all financial operations of the Post Office Department not delegated to the Auditor by law. Many of the Third Assistant's inspection duties were then transferred to the Office of the Chief Clerk.

As the postal service expanded in the latter half of the 19th century, the work of the Office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General became more varied and differentiated. In addition to a Division of Finance the Office set up divisions to handle dead letters; issue stamps, stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers, and postal cards; manage money-order, parcel-post, postal-savings, and registered-mail systems; and classify mail matter. The Office of the Third Assistant and its subordinate organizational units became known collectively as the Bureau of the Third Assistant Postmaster General in the second decade of the 20th century.

The Bureau of the Third Assistant Postmaster General was redesignated the Bureau of Finance on August 20, 1949, in accordance with the President's Reorganization Plan No. 3.

The records of the Bureau of the Third Assistant Postmaster General that are in the National Archives--including fiscal records that predated the Bureau--are arranged according to the Bureau's organization at the time it was redesignated the Bureau of Finance. The extant records of the Divisions of Postal Savings, Letters and Miscellaneous Mail, and Registered Mail are at the Post Office Department or at the General Services Administration Federal Records Center, Alexandria, Va.

Records of the Division of Finance

The Division of Finance was established by the Postmaster General in 1872 to handle the receipt and disbursement of postal revenues.

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE. 1922-37. 4 ft.

Chiefly letters received, copies of letters sent, and reports of postmasters relating to the deposit of postal funds in national and State banks. Also included are notifications by the Treasury Department of banks in receivership, and correspondence concerning lock-box rentals, responsibility for stolen post-office funds, safekeeping of stamps and money-order forms, and postmasters' checks returned because of insufficient funds. Arranged alphabetically by State and chronologically thereunder.

ACCOUNTS OF THE GENERAL POST OFFICE IN PHILADELPHIA AND OF THE VARIOUS DEPUTY POSTMASTERS ("LEDGER OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN"). July 26, 1775-Jan. 5, 1780. 1 vol. 2 in. ²

This volume contains the accounts of Benjamin Franklin, Richard Bache, Ebenezer Hazard, and Samuel Osgood as Postmasters General under the Continental Congress and the accounts of deputy postmasters with the General Post Office. The latest entry for accounts still open in July 1776 is dated January 1780. Arranged chronologically.

LEDGERS OF THE GENERAL POST OFFICE. 1782-1803. 7 vols. 9 in. ³

In three groups as follows: (1) Five general ledgers, (a) May 1, 1782, to Mar. 10, 1790, (b) July 1, 1783, to Jan. 21, 1794, (c) Oct. 1, 1793, to Dec. 31, 1796, (d) Jan. 1, 1797, to Dec. 31, 1799, and (e) for New York, Oct. 19, 1789, to Nov. 16, 1790, Philadelphia, Jan. 3, 1791, to Aug. 30, 1797, and Trenton, Sept. 1797. These five volumes show accounts of the Postmaster General, the Assistant Postmaster General, deputy postmasters, mail route contractors, and post riders relating to compensation, quarterly accounts, commissions, postage, mail service contracts, contingent expenses, letters sent by foreign or coastwise ships, incidental expenses, and drafts. (2) Ledger of errors in quarterly reports by deputy postmasters, July 1, 1799, to Oct. 1, 1803. (3) Cash ledger, Oct. 19, 1789, to June 30, 1796. This volume contains information relating to expenditures for salaries of post-office clerks, operating needs, mail contracts, and money received from deputy postmasters. Within each group the records are arranged chronologically; the second group is arranged thereunder alphabetically by name of post office.

JOURNALS OF THE GENERAL POST OFFICE. 1782-1801. 2 vols. 3 in. ⁴

One volume contains a General Journal dated Feb. 2, 1782, to July 25, 1790, and a Cash Book dated Sept. 25, 1792, to Oct. 22, 1795; and the other contains a Miscellaneous Journal dated July 1, 1795, to Mar. 28, 1801.

LEDGER OF POSTAGE ACCOUNTS OF POST OFFICES WITH THE GENERAL POST OFFICE. July 1785-Jan. 1786. 1 vol. 1 in. ⁵

Contains information about paid, unpaid, undercharged, overcharged, way, dead, and ship (coastwise and foreign) letters; letters remaining in post offices; letters missent and later forwarded; and salaries. Arranged chronologically.

SPECIMEN SALARY CHECKS, DRAFTS, AND WARRANTS. Aug. 1916; Feb. 1933-Sept. 1938. 1 in. ⁶

A chronological file of correspondence relating to the printing and handling of forms for checks, drafts, and warrants. Included are some undated and unarranged samples of the forms, about 1880-1938.

RECORDS RELATING TO POST-OFFICE BOXES. 1894-1934. 1 ft.

Correspondence, memoranda, reports, and tables relating to post-office boxes (lock boxes). Included are memoranda on the regulations governing the use of the boxes, correspondence embodying suggestions for improving the service, postmasters' reports on box rentals and key deposits, tables of rental fees, and related material. Unarranged.

Records of the Division of Money Orders

The domestic postal-money-order system was established on November 1, 1864, within the Office of the Postmaster General. The program was transferred to the jurisdiction of the First Assistant Postmaster General on July 16, 1892, where it was administered by the Division of Money Orders. On December 1, 1905, it was transferred to the Third Assistant Postmaster General. Its functions include the general direction of the money-order-system, both domestic and international, and the preparation of conventions for the exchange of money orders with foreign countries.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1868-1936. 6 ft.

Correspondence, memoranda, sample forms, and reports of the Division. The correspondence and memoranda relate to difficulties encountered in obtaining funds with which to cash money orders during the Panic of 1907; money-order redemptions for prisoners of war; embezzlement, counterfeiting, and forgery of money orders; money orders issued and paid in foreign countries; and money orders mailed to foreign countries during the moratorium of 1933. Sample forms include those used for postal-savings banks in foreign countries and those suggested by employees and the public for use in connection with proposed systems of domestic postal-saving banks. The reports deal with the electrical accounting system for the issuance, recording, and redemption of money orders; the decrease in money-order business as a result of raising the fees in 1925; and the cost of money-order business during the depression of the 1930's. Arranged by subject.

RECORDS OF INTERNATIONAL MONEY-ORDER CONVENTIONS. July 1873-May 1903. 3 ft.

Mainly correspondence between postal officials of the United States and foreign countries concerning conventions for the exchange of money orders. Included are copies of conventions, with proposed amendments and changes; pamphlets and circulars of regulations governing money-order issuance and redemption; lists of foreign offices handling money orders; specimen copies of money-order forms; and correspondence relating to foreign exchange rates. Arranged alphabetically by country and chronologically thereunder.

Records of the Division of Stamps

The Division of Stamps was established by the Postmaster General in 1872. Its functions include the general supervision of the production and distribution of postage-stamp paper.

"STAMP BILL BOOKS." 1870-97. 6 vols. 1 ft.

Contain monthly statements of purchases of ordinary postage, commemorative, specimen, postage-due, special-delivery, newspaper, and periodical stamps, and stamped envelopes; newspapers wrappers; registered-package envelopes; letter-sheet envelopes; and postal cards. Also included are lists of the contractors who furnished postal supplies, statements showing the cost of stamps and supplies, memoranda on the method of disbursing supplies, and a recapitulation of purchases made for the years 1879-97. Arranged chronologically.

LEDGER. 1898-1900. 1 in.

Shows quantities and costs of postage stamps, postal cards, stamped envelopes, and newspaper wrappers furnished to Cuba, Puerto Rico, Philippine Islands, and Guam. Arranged chronologically.

RECORDS PERTAINING TO POSTAL CARDS. 1893-1923. 40 ft.

Mainly correspondence, together with such related records as reports, memoranda, and circulars, documenting the activities of the Postal Card Agent and Inspector. The correspondence relates to personnel of the Postal Card Agency, contracts for paper and postal cards, defective postal cards, shipments, shortage and overage of cards, chemical analysis of paper used, locks and tags used for shipments, and postal card plates, dyes, and inks used. Included are samples of paper to be used, copies of contractor's weekly reports, receipts for rejected postal cards, sworn statements of contractor's daily production, reports of the postal-card factory, and yearly statements of production. Arranged by type of material.

A Postal Card Agent was appointed in 1893 by the Postmaster General for the inspection and issuance of postal cards. The United States Postal Card Agency was located for short periods of time at Birmingham, Conn., Castleton, N. Y., Piedmont, W. Va., and Rumford Falls, Maine. In 1910 the Agency was moved to Washington, D. C., and the Postal Card Agent was designated Post Office Inspector in Charge of Postal Cards.

Records of the Division of Newspaper and Periodical Mail

The Division of Newspaper and Periodical Mail was established in November 1943, as a successor to the Division of Classification. Its main function relates to the classification of matter admissible to the mails.

RECORDS RELATING TO SECOND-CLASS POSTAGE RATES. Apr. 1917-May 1920.

Correspondence, memoranda, reports, and circulars, relating to a proposed increase in rates for second-class mail matter. The records consist chiefly of correspondence with Members of Congress, various postal officials, private companies, fraternal organizations interested in the second-class mailing privilege, and charts, tables, and graphs showing the effect of the increase in rates on the Department's revenue. The congressional correspondence is arranged chronologically, and the remainder is unarranged

STATEMENTS OF OWNERSHIPS. 1923-54. 618 ft.

Consist of sworn statements, on form 3256, of the ownership, management, and circulation of newspapers, magazines, periodicals, and other publications, as required by acts of August 24, 1912, and March 3, 1933. The statements, which had to be filed by October 1 of each year, include the names and post-office addresses of editors, publishers, business managers, owners, stockholders (if the publication is owned by a corporation), bondholders, mortgageholders, and/or other security holders. Statements on daily newspapers include the average number of copies sold or distributed to paid subscribers during the preceding 12 months. Arranged chronologically by calendar year, thereunder alphabetically by States, and thereunder alphabetically by name of the publication. 14

Records of the Division of Parcel Post

The Parcel Post Service was established January 1, 1913, within the Office of the Postmaster General. To supervise the service, the Postmaster General, on November 22, 1930, established the Division of Parcel Post within the Bureau of the Third Assistant Postmaster General.

RECORDS RELATING TO PARCEL-POST FACILITIES IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES. Sept. 1911-Jan. 1912. 5 ft.

Include bulletins, booklets, and memoranda relating to parcel-post rules, regulations, and rates in foreign countries. These were obtained in countries with a parcel-post service by diplomatic officers of the United States in response to a State Department circular dated August 24, 1911, and were transmitted to the Postmaster General. Parcel-post information was received from Australia, Austria, Germany, Great Britain, Guatemala, Haiti, Hungary, Luxemburg, Mexico, Morocco, the Netherlands, Portugal, Russia, San Salvador, Spain, Switzerland, and Venezuela. Arranged alphabetically by country. 15

RECORDS OF THE BUREAU OF THE FOURTH ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL

The Office of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General was established by order of the Postmaster General on August 1, 1891, in accordance with provisions of the Appropriations Act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 944), which authorized the appointment of a Fourth Assistant. Three divisions were set up within the Office to carry out the duties of supervising the establishment of new post offices; appointing, bonding, and commissioning postmasters; operating the inspection service; and investigating mail depredations. The ever-increasing volume of work performed by the Post Office Department made necessary the development of additional services and divisions within the Office of the Fourth Assistant, which about 1930 achieved the status of a bureau.

As most of the records described here were created before a reorganization of 1946, they are arranged according to the divisional organization existing during the early part of that year. Records of the Division of Rural Mails, however, which had been transferred to the Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General in 1929, are described as part of the records of the Fourth Assistant.

On August 20, 1949, the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General was abolished by the President's Reorganization Plan No. 3, which provided for a Bureau of Facilities under an Assistant Postmaster General to continue the functions of the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General.

The most important functions of the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General in 1949 were (1) the administration, operation, and maintenance of Government-owned post-office buildings; (2) the authorization of allowances for rent, light, and fuel for post offices and other postal quarters and allowances for the hire of vehicles required for collection and special-delivery services; (3) the custody and distribution of equipment and supplies for the Postal Service; (4) the supervision of screen-wagon, pneumatic-tube, and Government-owned motor-vehicle services; (5) the production and distribution of post-route maps and parcel-post-zone keys; and (6) the supervision of mail-equipment shops, and the manufacture and repair of mail bags, locks, keys, and key chains.

Records of the Immediate Office of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General

The Office consisted of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, a deputy, a special administrative aide, assistants, and secretaries. The activities of the Office dealt mainly with (1) the supervision and administration of the operations of the divisions of the Bureau and its field offices, (2) the review and approval of budget estimates and of all journals and allowances from appropriations relating to the Bureau, (3) the supervision of departmental and field personnel, and (4) the representation of the Postmaster General by the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General at Government conferences or in Federal committees relating to public buildings.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1905-32. 34 ft.

Letters received and copies of letters sent, memoranda, reports (of committees, investigations, costs, and work), statements, and instructions relating to the operation of the Bureau and its divisions and offices. Arranged by classification number (see appendix I).

CORRESPONDENCE OF JAMES I. BLAKSLEE. 1914-20. 1 ft.

This correspondence of Mr. Blakslee, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General from Mar. 17, 1913, to Mar. 14, 1921, relates to the appointment of postmasters, clerks, and rural mail carriers; post-office quarters; rural-mail service; and deliveries of farm produce by motor-vehicle service. Arranged alphabetically by name of correspondent.

Records of the Division of Topography

An Act of July 2, 1836, authorized the appointment of a clerk to act as topographer of the Post Office Department. The Office of the Topographer, originally under the Chief Clerk, was redesignated the Division of Topography on December 1, 1905, and was transferred from the Office of the Postmaster General to the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General.

On July 1, 1913, this Division was absorbed by the Division of Supplies. In accordance with a 1953 order of the Postmaster General, the Division of Supplies was divided into the Division of Equipment and Supplies and the Division of Topography. These divisions are parts of the Bureau of Facilities, as the Bureau of the Fourth Postmaster General has been known since 1949.

Although the Division of Topography is mainly responsible for compiling, drawing, revising, printing, and distributing post-route maps (State, county, rural-delivery, and air-mail), it also prepares special-purpose maps and organizational and fiscal charts.

OUTGOING CORRESPONDENCE. Oct. 15, 1901-Sept. 1, 1911. 1 vol. 2 in.

Chiefly press copies of letters and memoranda relating to the organization of the Office of the Topographer, budget estimates and expenditures, personnel, techniques of reproducing post-route maps, advertisement of proposals for reproducing and furnishing post-route maps, and the acquisition of supplies and equipment. Annual and progress reports of the Office of the Topographer and lists of rural-delivery-service maps are also included in the series. Arranged chronologically. 18

REPORTS OF SITE LOCATIONS. 1865-1946. 292 ft.

Completed forms submitted by postmasters, giving the location of their post offices and other geographical information to aid the Post Office Department in the preparation of postal maps. These forms contain such data as the official name of the post office together with local name or name changes; section, township, range, and meridian in which the post office was located; terminals of the nearest postal route; mileage to the adjacent post offices, rivers, and creeks; footage or rods to the nearest railroad tracks, railroad depot, or highway; and a diagram or map of the location of the post office. The series includes a few scattered reports dated as early as 1837 and as late as 1950. Arranged alphabetically by name of State, thereunder alphabetically by name of county and post office, and lastly chronologically by date of report. 19

ATLAS OF POSTAL MAPS. 1839. 13 sheets. 1 inch.

A published record copy of "The American Atlas Exhibiting the Post Offices, Railroads, Canals, and the Physical and Political Divisions of the United States of America Constructed . . . Under the Direction of the Post Master General by David H. Burr, Geographer to the House of Representatives of the U. S." There are maps of the United States and adjacent countries, and maps of the following States portrayed singly or in combination: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas, Ohio and Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, Illinois and Wisconsin, and Michigan and part of Wisconsin Territory. 20

POST-ROUTE MAPS. 1867-94. 47 items. 6 in.

An incomplete published record set of intermediate-scale maps of sections of the United States. These maps were created under the direction of the Topographer of the Post Office Department. They show post offices, distances between offices, frequency of service, and mail-carrying railroads by name of railroad and include county boundaries and principal drainage features. These maps usually include from two to six States, Territories, or parts of States and Territories. They antedate the Post-Route (State) Maps described in entry 22 and are different in format. Many of the maps have been corrected by hand and the date of the correction is written on the map. Arranged chronologically by date of publication. These maps are listed chronologically in appendix II. Similar maps of this and earlier periods may be found among the cartographic records of the Office of the Chief of Engineers, RG 77.

POST-ROUTE (STATE) MAPS. 1894-1957. 448 items. 2 ft.

Published record set of maps of the individual States, Territories, and island possessions of the United States, on an intermediate scale, showing information relating to post offices, postal routes, mail-carrying railroads by name of railroad, rural-delivery routes, air-mail routes, mail-supply points, and method and frequency of postal service. In addition to postal information these maps show county boundaries and principal drainage features. This series of maps, although different in format, is a continuation of the series described in entry 21 and was designed to include all editions of a given map. It is incomplete, however, for the years before 1937. Some of the editions of these maps, particularly for the years 1917 and 1935-40, have been annotated to show special types of information and are described in entries 25 and 30. The post-route maps are listed in appendix III. Arranged alphabetically by name of State, Territory, or island possession and thereunder chronologically by date of publication.

MANUSCRIPT MAPS. 1901-47. 63 items. 2 in.

Manuscript post-route maps of States, Territories, and island possessions used to prepare the published post-route maps. Changes were made as necessary on the manuscripts, and each one is correct as of the last date appearing on it. Some of the earlier maps, however, are not dated. They show essentially the same detail as the published post-route maps described in entry 22. Arranged alphabetically by name of State or other area. These maps are listed in appendix IV.

POSTAL-ZONE MAPS. 1913. 124 items. 1 in.

24

A series of published official parcel-post maps of the United States, dated 1913, with annotations of unknown date showing boundaries of zones used to determine parcel-post changes. These maps were prepared for use with the parcel-post guide. There is also a map annotated to show parcel-post unit areas within each State. Arranged numerically by zone number.

POST-ROUTE (STATE) MAPS SHOWING NAVIGABLE WATERS. 1917. 14 items.

Published post-route maps of States mainly in the eastern United States, annotated with information relating to the navigable waters in the particular State and to the coastal waters of those States bordering on the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. These maps are listed by State in appendix III, with symbols differentiating them from the published record set of the post-route maps. Arranged alphabetically by name of State.

CITY MAPS. 1912-35. 575 items. 3 ft.

Published, photoprocessed, and manuscript maps of selected cities in the United States annotated with information apparently relating to delivery routes and location of postal facilities, business sections, sidewalks, and mail boxes. Arranged numerically by case number and thereunder alphabetically by name of State and within the State by cities. 26

RURAL-DELIVERY-ROUTE MAPS. 1927-28. 600 items. 1 ft.

A representative sampling of the maps prepared to show individual rural-delivery routes throughout the United States. These maps, which are generally annotated blueprints, are accompanied by a carbon typescript of the official description of the route giving the direction and stops to be made, the distance between each stop, and the total mileage of the route. Arranged alphabetically by name of post office. 27

RURAL-DELIVERY LOCAL-CENTER MAPS. 1900-1937. 600 items. 1 ft.

Manuscript maps of rural areas throughout the United States showing the rural-delivery routes servicing the areas. Arranged alphabetically by name of State. 28

RURAL-DELIVERY-ROUTE COUNTY MAPS. n. d. 40 items. 3 in.

An incomplete set of photoprocessed county maps, probably of the 1930's, showing the rural-delivery routes. Arranged alphabetically by name of State and thereunder by name of county. 29

POST-ROUTE (STATE) MAPS SHOWING CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS. 1935-40. 58 items. 4 in.

An incomplete set of published post-route maps annotated to show the boundaries and the numbers of the congressional districts within the individual States. These maps are listed by State in appendix III, with symbols differentiating them from the published record set of post-route maps. Arranged alphabetically by name of State and thereunder chronologically by date of publication of the base map. 30

POST-ROUTE (STATE) MAPS ANNOTATED WITH UNINTERPRETED RED DOTS. 1935-40. 63 items. 4 in.

Published post-route maps with annotations in the form of red dots over certain cities or towns. There is no key to these dots, which appear to have been placed on the maps by hand. One conjecture is that they identify first-class offices. These maps are listed by State in appendix III, with symbols differentiating them from the published record set of the post-route maps. Arranged alphabetically by name of State and thereunder chronologically by date of publication of the base map. 31

POST-ROUTE (STATE) MAPS ANNOTATED WITH UNINTERPRETED NUMBERS. 1937-39.

3 items.

32

Published post-route maps which have six-digit numbers stamped generally along railroad routes. No key is given to these numbers. These maps are listed in appendix III, with symbols differentiating them from the published record set of post-route maps. Arranged alphabetically by name of State.

Records of the Division of Motor Vehicle Service

Although there was an experimental automobile mail-collection service in Milwaukee, Wis., in February 1908, motor-vehicle service was not authorized by Congress until its inclusion in the postal appropriations for the fiscal year 1915. This service and the screen-wagon service (mail carried by wagon and later motor truck enclosed by a steel screen) were assigned to the Division of Post Office Services in the Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General on July 1, 1916. In September 1921 the work relating to the operation of the Government-owned motor-vehicle service and the contract-vehicle service was transferred to the newly created Division of Vehicle Transportation in the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. The Division was redesignated the Division of Motor Vehicle Service on October 6, 1921, and was transferred back to the Bureau of the First Assistant. During the latter part of 1930 the Division was reassigned to the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. The Division was mainly concerned with the operation of the Government-owned motor-vehicle service and the pneumatic-tube service.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1896-1939. 8 ft.

33

Advertisements, contracts, and correspondence concerning the construction and operation of mail-transportation vehicles. The records also include materials relating to the claim of H.C. McFarlin of Little Rock, Ark., under a screen-wagon contract. Unarranged.

ROUTE REGISTERS AND CONTRACTS RELATING TO SCREEN-WAGON SERVICE. 1901-36.
100 vols. 28 ft.

The registers contain for each screen-wagon route the original order of the Department authorizing the establishment, change, or discontinuance of the route; the name of the contractor; the stations along the routes, if any, and the terminals; the mileage between stations; the rate of pay per mile; and the total amount paid per annum. There is also some information about transfer, mail-station, city-delivery, collection, and steamboat services; advertisements; proposals for carrying the mails by screen-wagon service; and instructions to bidders. For several periods for which no registers are available, there are volumes of original signed contracts. Both the registers and the volumes of contracts are arranged by the contract term of 4 years, thereunder by name of State or Territory, and thereunder by route number.

CORRESPONDENCE RELATING TO THE SHIPMENT OF FARM PRODUCE BY MOTOR-TRUCK SERVICE. 1919-20. 1 ft.

Interoffice memoranda and correspondence with postmasters, route agents,

Members of Congress, farmers, and merchants relating to attempts to ship farm produce by postal trucks. Arranged alphabetically by commodity.

Records of Pneumatic-Tube Service

The transportation of mail by pneumatic tubes was initiated in 1893 in Philadelphia with the construction and use of an experimental line of 6-inch tubes between the Main Post Office and the East Chestnut Street Station. Because of demands to extend the service in Philadelphia and to establish it in other cities, the Post Office Department appointed a local and a general committee in 1900 to investigate and report on the advisability of extending the service. A formal report was submitted to Congress on January 4, 1901, which by an act of April 21, 1902, authorized the use of the service. Since July 1, 1904, provisions for pneumatic-tube-service contracts for Boston, New York City, Brooklyn, Chicago, and St. Louis have been included in the annual appropriations for the Post Office Department.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1892-1919. 26 ft.

Correspondence, reports, contracts, and miscellaneous records relating to the establishment and operation of the pneumatic-tube mail service; records and correspondence concerning the invention and ownership of pneumatic tubes; correspondence, surveys, studies, and blueprints relating to the extension of the service from the New York General Post Office to a station in Brooklyn, and from the Boston General Post Office to the North Postal Station, to the South Terminal Railroad Station, to the Essex Street Postal Station, and to the Back Bay Station. Also included are statistics on the weight of mail delivered; reports on the proposed extension of services; advertisements for and correspondence related to bids to carry mails by pneumatic tubes; maps and blueprints of the routes to be used; and reports on the installation of air-cooling apparatus in the Boston General Post Office. Unarranged. 36

ORDERS. 1902-6. 1 vol. 1 in.

Original orders authorizing the establishment, change, or discontinuance of pneumatic-tube service in Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago, and St. Louis. The orders contain the name of the contractor, the names of stations along the route, the mileage between stations, the rate of pay per mile, and the total amount paid per annum. The volume also includes advertisements for contracts, proposals for carrying the mails by pneumatic tubes or similar devices, and instructions to bidders. Arranged by route number. 37

RECORDS OF THE PNEUMATIC TUBE COMMISSION. 1912-14. 1 ft.

The Commission to Investigate Pneumatic Tube Postal Systems, usually known as the Pneumatic Tube Commission, consisted of two members of the House, two members of the Senate, and Second Assistant Postmaster General Joseph Stewart. It was established by Congress on August 24, 1912, to investigate the desirability of governmental ownership of the pneumatic-tube service then operated under contract in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, and St. Louis. 38

The Commission's records include its minutes and final report; reports, memoranda, and photographs on the operation of the pneumatic-tube service; correspondence and memoranda on related patents; and copies of contracts. Unarranged.

Records of the Division of Post Office Quarters

The responsibility for post-office quarters not in Federally owned buildings was shared by the Office of the Postmaster General, the Solicitor for the Post Office Department, the Chief Inspector, and the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department until June 10, 1933, when Executive Order 6166 assigned the function to the Division of Building Operations and Supplies of the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. In October 1933 the Postmaster General ordered this function transferred to the newly created Division of Post Office Quarters.

This Division leased or rented quarters for post offices, post-office garages, and railway terminals; authorized allowances for rent, light, fuel, water, and equipment required in such quarters; and reviewed reports prepared by postal inspectors relating to such quarters.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1916-42. 3 ft. 39

Correspondence, reports, and exhibits relating to an alleged combination among equipment companies to control prices; correspondence and reports relating to the maintenance and construction of post offices; administrative issuances; and divisional work progress reports. Arranged by subject or type of record.

RECORDS RELATING TO LEASES. 1916-32. 3 ft. 40

Postal inspectors' reports relating to the valuation of postal quarters (post offices, stations, branches, terminals, and garages); postmasters' reports about local leases; hearings of a Senate committee on post-office leases; correspondence and reports concerning leases for the St. Paul Commercial Station and Chicago Post Office; architectural specifications and floor plans of the Boston Back Bay Station and the Chicago Federal Building; and a 1916-25 register of leases approved by the Solicitor for the Post Office Department. Arranged by type of record and thereunder chronologically.

BLUEPRINTS, SKETCH PLANS, AND ESTIMATES FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF POST-OFFICE BUILDINGS OR EXTENSIONS. 1911-30. 12 ft. 41

In addition to the blueprints, plans, and estimates there are copies of Form No. 1414, prepared by postmasters, giving information about the number of employees and the space in and condition of Federal buildings; questionnaires completed by postmasters on the space accommodations necessary for proposed Federal buildings; a few city maps showing notations of old and proposed postal stations and garages; and a few reports of leased property occupied by the Post Office Department. Arranged alphabetically by name of State.

RECORDS RELATING TO DEDICATIONS OF POST-OFFICE BUILDINGS AND OF CORNERSTONES. 1933-42. 12 ft.

Post office histories, containing dates of establishment, discontinu-⁴²ance, and reestablishment, name changes, names of postmasters and dates of their appointment, statements of postal receipts, and descriptions of the newly constructed post-office buildings; correspondence with postmasters and Congressmen relating to dedication ceremonies; lists of pending ceremonies; copies of dedication speeches; and postal inspectors' reports. Arranged alphabetically by name of State.

Records of the Division of Equipment and Supplies

In accordance with an order of the Postmaster General dated November 1, 1905, all clerks in the Post Office Department engaged in handling supplies and in work incident thereto were transferred to the Division of Supplies under the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. The Division was responsible administering the appropriation for all supplies purchased and furnished directly to the postal service.

On July 1, 1913, the Division of Equipment, which had operated the mail-bag repair shops and the mail-lock shop in Washington, D. C., was transferred from the Bureau of the Second Assistant Postmaster General to the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General and combined with the Division of Supplies. The name of the Division was not changed until October 6, 1921, when it became known as the Division of Equipment and Supplies and was made responsible for the manufacture of mail bags. In 1933, by order of the Postmaster General, the Division of Equipment and Supplies was redesignated the Division of Building Operations and Supplies. The former title, Division of Equipment and Supplies, was restored when the Postmaster General on June 18, 1943, reorganized the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General along functional lines.

The Division was mainly concerned with the preparation of specifications for supplies and equipment; the review of bids and subsequent recommendations to purchasing agents; and the receipt, storage, control, and issue of stock and operating equipment. The records of the Division that have been retained illustrate the "housekeeping" activities of the Post Office Department.

RECORDS OF PRINTED MATTER ORDERED FROM CONTRACTORS. 1899-1902. 1 vol. 2 in.

The volume shows the order and item numbers, name of contractor, and quantity ordered, cost, and date of request for books, forms, and cards. Arranged by order number.⁴³

COST REPORTS. 1915-24. 1 ft.

Monthly reports of work performed in mail-equipment shops, showing the types of work, the number of employees and labor hours, and the labor and unit costs for each job. Arranged chronologically.⁴⁴

CORRESPONDENCE RELATING TO FIREARMS AND AMMUNITION. 1924-27. 4 in. 45

Relates to the ordering, use, and disposition of firearms and ammunition for Railway Mail Service employees. Arranged chronologically.

MISCELLANEOUS RECORDS. 1868-1911. 3 ft. 46

Records arranged by the Post Office Department to illustrate the operations of the Division. Included are samples of bids, requisitions, and contracts for equipment and supplies; memoranda relating to proposals for repairing and maintaining post-office buildings; applications for positions; letters of recommendation; leave records; lists of employees; and correspondence concerning the disposition of waste material. Interspersed in this series are references to records of the Disbursing Clerk, which relate to acknowledgments of checks and vouchers, pay rolls, settlement of accounts, estimates of appropriations for repairs, deficiency estimates, contingent expense accounts, and receipts for payments. Arranged chronologically.

Records of the Division of Rural Mails

Rural free delivery was instituted on October 1, 1896, and statutorily established by an act of April 28, 1902, as a branch of the Office of the General Superintendent of Free Delivery within the Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General. On May 9, 1903, the Postmaster General transferred to the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General the Division of Free Delivery, the Superintendent of City-Free-Delivery Service, and the Superintendent of Rural Free Delivery. The Office of the General Superintendent of Free Delivery was discontinued on May 27, 1903, and the remaining offices and services of the Division of Free Delivery were organized into separate divisions.

On April 30, 1910, the Postmaster General directed that the star-route functions of the Division of Contracts in the Bureau of the Second Assistant Postmaster General be transferred to the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant and combined with the Division of Rural Free Delivery under the title of Division of Rural Mails. The Division was responsible for the operation of rural-delivery service and for the appointment and supervision of rural mail carriers. The Division was transferred to the Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General in 1929; to the Bureau of the Second Assistant Postmaster General in 1932; and back to the Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General on July 1, 1942, where it was coordinated with the other delivery services in the Post Office Service.

A description of many of the early records of the Division of Rural Mails may be found in series entries 52 and 53 of Preliminary Inventory No. 36, Records of the Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General, 1789-1942. Since the publication of this inventory many more of the Division's records have been accessioned by the National Archives and they all are now grouped with the records of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General and described below. Most of these records cover the period 1903-29, when the Division was within the Bureau of the Fourth Assistant.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1915-34. 94 ft.

Letters received, copies of letters sent, memoranda, postal inspectors' reports, cost reports, orders, statements, instructions, petitions, and occasional maps relating to the establishment, extension, and discontinuance of rural mail routes and to the administration of the Division of Rural Mails. Arranged in four groups: (1) by classification number, 1922-38 (see appendix V); (2) alphabetically by name of State and thereunder alphabetically by name of county, 1915-18; (3) alphabetically by name of State and thereunder alphabetically by name of post office, 1930-31; and (4) alphabetically by name of State, 1932-34. 47

INDEX TO RURAL-FREE-DELIVERY ROUTES. 1896-1943. 35 ft. 48

An index on 6" x 8" cards showing the following information on the individual rural-free-delivery routes: date and number of the Postmaster General's order of establishment, name of the Congressman in whose district the route was located, length and terminals, a summary of the postal inspector's recommendation, date and type of changes, and date of discontinuance. The names of the first rural mail carriers are occasionally given. Arranged alphabetically by name of State and thereunder alphabetically by name of the post office from which the rural route began.

RECORDS RELATING TO ACTS PROVIDING FOR FEDERAL AID TO POST ROADS. Sept. 1912-Mar. 1917. 10 in. 49

Correspondence with the Department of Agriculture and State and county governments, concerning the distribution of funds and plans for the construction, improvement, and relocation of roads; surveys and studies relating to post roads in Alabama, Iowa, and Texas; and a chart showing "Operations on Post Roads Designated for Improvement Under Act of August 24, 1912." Unarranged.

Federal aid for the construction and improvement of post roads was provided under the Post Office Department Appropriation Acts of August 24, 1912, and March 4, 1913, and the Federal-Aid Road Act of July 11, 1916.

FORMS. 1902-10. 2 ft. 50

Forms used for letters, inter-office memoranda, serial memoranda, general orders, instructions, questionnaires, and lists, and posting media used by the Office of the General Superintendent of Delivery System and the Division of Rural Free Delivery. Arranged in three groups: (1) 1906-10, numerically by form numbers; (2) 1902-7, chronologically; and (3) 1909, unarranged.

REJECTED PETITIONS FOR RURAL MAIL ROUTES. 1912-15. 2 ft. 51

Petitions, reports, and correspondence related to proposed rural mail routes in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Louisiana, and Minnesota. Arranged alphabetically by name of State and thereunder alphabetically by name of county.

RECORDS RELATING TO RURAL MAIL CARRIERS. 1901-20. 14 ft. 52

Letters received, copies of letters sent, applications and petitions relating to the eligibility, appointment, reinstatement, transfer, promotion, bonding, efficiency, recommendations, and complaints of rural mail carriers; and correspondence concerning the establishment, changes, schedules, and discontinuance of rural mail routes. In two groups: (1) arranged alphabetically by name of post office, 1901-17, and (2) "State Files-Appointment Section," arranged alphabetically by name of State and thereunder chronologically, 1913-20.

ACCOUNTING RECORDS. 1906-19. 4 vols. 4 in.

Records retained to illustrate the accounting records of the period, consisting of (1) accounts of rearrangements, amendments, and discontinuances in the Rural-Delivery Service, 1906-8; (2) accounts of various items paid (service, substitutes, clerks in rural stations, tolls, and ferriage) from the general appropriation for Rural-Delivery Service, Village-Delivery Service, and Star Service, 1908-16; (3) accounts for travel and miscellaneous expenses in the postal-service office of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, clerks in charge of substations, rural carriers, and toll and ferriage, 1906-7; and (4) accounts of star payments by the New York, Chicago, and San Francisco subtreasuries, 1917-19. Arranged in the order mentioned.

RECORDS OF THE BUREAU OF ACCOUNTS

The compilation of audits and the settlement of accounts for the General Post Office were placed within the jurisdiction of the Office of the Comptroller of the Treasury by an act of September 2, 1789 (1 Stat. 66). These accounting functions were transferred to the Fifth Auditor of the Treasury on March 3, 1817 (3 Stat. 366), and to the Sixth Auditor on July 2, 1836 (5 Stat. 81).

The functions remained within the Treasury Department until the Bureau of Accounts was established in the Post Office Department in accordance with the Budget and Accounting Act of June 10, 1921 (42 Stat. 24), to perform the duties formerly assigned to the Sixth Auditor. The Bureau, comprising a Headquarters Office (also known as the Office of the Comptroller) and the several Divisions of Accounts, Cost Ascertainment, and Methods and Procedures performed the following: (1) examined all accounts of salaries and incidental expenses, all postal and money-order accounts of postmasters, and accounts relating to the transportation of mail; and (2) certified quarterly to the Postmaster General an accounting of postmasters' funds and of the general expenses of the postal service. The General Accounting Office audited and preserved these accounts in compliance with legislation regarding the fiscal operations of the Government.

The Bureau of Accounts was terminated by the Postmaster General on June 12, 1953. Its functions were then transferred to a newly established Bureau of the Controller, which was itself terminated on November 1, 1954. The functions are now assigned to the Bureau of Finance.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1889-1924. 23 ft.

54

Letters received, copies of letters sent, memoranda, reports, statements, bulletins, and lists relating to the operation of the bureau. Arranged alphabetically by subject and thereunder chronologically.

OUTGOING CORRESPONDENCE. 1904-18. 20 vols. 2 ft.

Press copies of outgoing letters of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department containing mainly information about personnel and audits of postal accounts. Interspersed among the letters are lists of employees, the indebted postal accounts of postmasters, requisitions for repairs and supplies, and inventories of equipment. Arranged chronologically. 55

RECORDS OF THE BUREAU OF THE CHIEF INSPECTOR

From the beginning of the Post Office Department, the Postmaster General employed the Assistant Postmasters General as special agents to investigate the operations of post offices. As early as June 14, 1790, the Postmaster General prepared detailed instructions for reporting on irregularities discovered during visits to post offices. The supervision of this activity was assigned, at about this time to the Office of Instructions, within, the Office of the Postmaster General. In 1830 the Office of Instructions was redesignated the Office of Instructions and Mail Depredations and was assigned to the Office of the Second Assistant Postmaster General.

From 1835 to 1939 the responsibility for the supervision of investigations of mail depredations was transferred by the Postmaster General successively to the following organizational units: Miscellaneous Division, Office of the Postmaster General; Contract Division, Office of the Second Assistant Postmaster General; Office of Mail Depredations, Office of the Postmaster General; Division of Special Agents and Mail Depredations, Office of the Postmaster General; Division of Post Office Inspectors and Mail Depredations, first in the Office of the Postmaster General and later in the Office of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General; and the Division of Post Office Inspectors, Office of the Postmaster General.

On February 2, 1939, the Postmaster General established the Bureau of the Chief Inspector, comprising an Office of the Chief Inspector, and three divisions, namely, Administrative Investigations, Mail Investigations, and Financial Investigations. The Bureau was authorized to investigate all matters relating to depredations upon the mails; consider complaints of criminal offenses against the postal services; handle claims for rewards granted for the prosecution of offenders against postal laws; supervise the Post Office Inspection Service; and inspect the finances, property, and equipment of the Post Office Department.

The director of the inspection agents of the Post Office Department was known during various periods as the Chief Post Office Inspector, Division Superintendent, Division Chief, Chief Special Agent, and Chief Inspector. When the Bureau of the Chief Inspector was organized in 1939, its functions included the general supervision of the departmental Bureau and the field Post Office Inspection Service; the development and administration of inspection policies and programs; the selection, assignment, and separation of departmental and field personnel of the Bureau; and the maintenance of liaison with the National Archives, the Army, and the Navy.

LETTERS SENT BY THE CHIEF SPECIAL AGENT. May 21, 1875-July 11, 1877. 1 vol. 2 in. ⁵⁶

Press copies of letters sent by the Chief Special Agent, Office of Mail Depredations, to special agents of the Inspection Division in the field, to postmasters, and to other postal officials relating to irregularities in receiving, handling, and dispatching mail. APPENDIX III

LIST OF POST-ROUTE MAPS BY STATE, TERRITORY, OR POSSESSION

An alphabetical listing, by name of State, Territory, or island possession, of the post-route (State) maps described in entries 22, 25, 30, 31, and 32, followed by the dates of the editions of the individual maps. The following symbols are used to further annotate the list.

- * Signifies that there is also an edition of that date that has been annotated to show congressional districts (see entry 30).
- # Signifies that there is an edition of that date that has been annotated with red dots (see entry 31).
- / Signifies that there is an edition of that date that has been annotated with information regarding navigable waters (see entry 25).
- ¢ Signifies that there is an edition of that date that has been annotated with six-digit numbers (see entry 32).

When any of these symbols follow a date that is in parentheses there is no edition for that particular date other than the annotated version. Occasionally some of the editions have been corrected by hand to a later date and there is no record copy of the earlier edition. When this occurs the entry contains the date of the original edition and the date of the correction.

FOREWORD

To analyze and describe the permanently valuable records of the Federal Government preserved in the National Archives Building is one of the main tasks of the National Archives. Various kinds of finding aids are needed to facilitate the use of these records, and the first step in the records-description program is the compilation of preliminary inventories of the material in the almost 300 record groups to which the holdings of the National Archives are allocated.

These inventories are called "preliminary" because they are provisional in character. They are prepared as soon as possible after the records are received without waiting to screen out all disposable material or to perfect the arrangement of the records. They are compiled primarily for internal use, both as finding aids to help the staff render efficient reference service and as a means of establishing administrative control over the records.

Each preliminary inventory contains an introduction that briefly states the history and functions of the agency that accumulated the records. The records themselves are described series by series, that is, by units of records of the same form or that deal with the same subject or activity or that are arranged serially. Other significant information about the records may sometimes be given in appendixes.

When the record group has been studied sufficiently and the records have been placed in final order, the preliminary inventories will be revised and the word "preliminary" dropped from the title of the revision. Meanwhile, as occasion demands and time permits, special reports, indexes, calendars, and other finding aids to the record group will be prepared.

Several finding aids that give an overall picture of materials in the National Archives have been published. A comprehensive Guide to the Records in the National Archives (1948) and a brief guide, Your Government's Records in the National Archives (revised 1950), have been issued. Forty-four Reference Information Papers, which analyze records in the National Archives on such subjects as transportation, small business, and the Middle East, have so far been issued. Records of World War I have been described in the Handbook of Federal World War Agencies and Their Records, 1917-1921, and those of World War II in the two-volume guide, Federal Records of World War II (1950-51). Many bodies of records of high research value have been edited by the National Archives and reproduced on microfilm as a form of publication. Positive prints of some 9,000 rolls of this microfilm, most of which are described in the List of National Archives Microfilm Publications (1953), are now available for purchase.

INTRODUCTION

By the end of 1940 the volume of propaganda emanating from official and clandestine radio stations in belligerent and neutral nations had become enormous. In this country the State Department was seriously concerned about the anti-American propaganda being transmitted to Latin America and other friendly nations. It therefore recommended to the President, apparently in an informal communication, that the Government monitor foreign broadcasts. The President stated that this problem was within the jurisdiction of the Defense Communications Board (renamed the Board of War Communications on June 15, 1942).

The State Department's representative on the Board, Breckinridge Long, Assistant Secretary of State (the other members were the Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, the Director of Naval Communications, and an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury) brought the matter before the Defense Communications Board at a meeting on January 3, 1941. Assistant Secretary Long stressed the need for this country, confronted with a system of radio-telephonic broadcasting emanating from countries abroad that was aggressive in character and frequently of subversive intent, to establish adequate listening facilities for the purpose of monitoring foreign broadcasts. On January 13, 1941, the matter was again discussed and resolutions were adopted by the Board to establish and maintain additional monitoring facilities necessary to keep the Government informed about communications being broadcast from Europe and the Far East and intended for persons in this country or neighboring countries. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) was requested to submit a plan for monitoring foreign broadcasts.

The plan submitted by the Commission provided for the expansion of monitoring services already performed by it on a restricted scale. On January 21, 1941, the Board approved a "Memorandum to the President" recommending the FCC plan and requesting the allotment of additional funds to the Commission for recording, translating, transcribing, and analyzing certain radio broadcast programs originating at European, Asiatic, South American, and Latin American broadcasting stations. In a letter of February 25, 1941, the President directed the Secretary of the Treasury to allocate funds to the FCC "from the Emergency Fund for the President" (provided in the Military Appropriations Act of 1941, approved June 30, 1940) as recommended by the Board. On the following day, February 26, the Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service (FBMS) was established as a unit within the FCC and the function of monitoring foreign broadcasts, hitherto conducted on a small scale by the Field Division of the Engineering Department, was transferred to the newly created Service.

Harold N. Graves, Jr., former Director of the Princeton University Radio Listening Center, was acting Director of the FBMS until June 1941, when he became Assistant to the newly appointed Director, Lloyd Free. By September the Service comprised an Office of the Director, an Advisory Board, and seven sections: Translation and Transcription, Report, Analysis, Monitoring, Engineering, Mail and Files, and Stenographic.

During the first half of 1942 the FCC developed a divisional organization for the FBMS. The Translation and Transcription, Report, Analysis, Engineering, and Mail and Files Sections were designated divisions; and the Monitoring and Stenographic Sections were incorporated into the Analysis Division. The field establishments of the FBMS (listening posts) were located in Portland, Oreg., San Francisco, Calif., Kingsville, Tex., Santurce, P. R., and London, England; they were known either as bureaus, posts, or stations. On July 28, 1942, 2 weeks after Director Free was replaced by Robert D. Leigh, the FCC changed the name of the Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service to the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service (FBIS). Shortly thereafter the Engineering Division was redesignated the Broadcast Recording Unit.

By March 1943 the number of employees and the variety of activities of the FBIS had reached their peak. FBIS operations were classified in terms of the following successive steps: (1) scheduling of programs; (2) interception; (3) and (4) monitoring and recording (which occurred simultaneously); (5) translation; (6) wire service, including editing and teletyping; (7) reports, including editing and mimeographing; (8) analysis, the results of which were contained in periodicals and special reports; and (9) various related services upon request.

Additional listening posts, staffed by editors and monitors working in cooperation with the Office of War Information, the British Ministry of Information, and the British Broadcasting Corp., were established at Silver Hill, Md., on Hawaii, and at several foreign locations to intercept broadcasts of foreign news, intelligence, or propaganda emanating from authorized stations or clandestine transmitters in belligerent, occupied, and neutral countries. At the listening posts, memovox recordings, transcripts, and translations were made and then teletyped, cabled, or mailed to the national office. These listening posts were occasionally referred to as field offices or bureaus (e.g., San Francisco Office, London Bureau).

At the national office the incoming wires and transcriptions were edited and the more significant material or the full text teletyped to Government agencies concerned with the military, diplomatic, and propaganda aspects of the war. Special interpretations and daily and weekly summaries were prepared and distributed to appropriate Government agencies.

The decline in FBIS activities, beginning in the spring of 1943, was chiefly the result of congressional investigations of its personnel and functions, first by the House Select Committee to Investigate the Federal Communications Commission and later by the House Appropriations Committee. The charges considered by the two committees included: (1) The FCC had exceeded its authority in establishing the FBIS; (2) analytical evaluations of broadcasts could best be prepared by the agencies using them (chiefly the Office of War Information and the War and State Departments); and (3) two officials of the Service were unfit to hold their positions.

While Congress was investigating the Service, several agencies were already conferring about the proper allocation of the analysis function. As a result, the Analysis Division was terminated and most of its personnel were transferred to the Office of War Information. In March 1945, after several reorganizations, the FBIS comprised the Office of the Director, the Office of the Chief Editor, and the Distribution, Daily Report, Far East, and Monitoring Divisions.

On December 4, 1945, an FCC news release announced the suspension of FBIS monitoring of foreign broadcasts, effective the following day, and the termination of the services of its personnel, effective December 10. In a letter to the Chairman of the FCC on December 21, 1945, however, the Secretary of War stressed the need for continuing the Service and proposed that the Commission discontinue the liquidation of the FBIS until arrangements could be made for the transfer of its personnel and facilities to the War Department. The proposal was accepted by the Commission on December 27, 1945, and, by order of the Secretary of War, the Service was transferred to the Military Intelligence Division of the General Staff on December 30. On August 5, 1946, the FBIS was transferred to the Central Intelligence Group of the National Intelligence Authority, where it was renamed the Foreign Broadcast Information Service on October 31, 1946, and the Foreign Broadcast Information Branch on December 31, 1946.

The records described in this inventory amount to 697 cubic feet, including 190 cubic feet of sound recordings and related indexes. They are designated as Record Group 262, Records of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service. They comprise the records of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service and its predecessors and of its successor, the Foreign Broadcast Information Service through November 1946, when the transfer to the Central Intelligence Group of the National Intelligence Authority took practical effect. (A few papers of later date are scattered through the record group.) They were transferred to the National Archives from the Federal Communications Commission, the War Department, and the Central Intelligence Agency and its predecessors. The personnel records have been transferred to the Federal Records Center at St. Louis, Mo.

Records relating to the establishment and subsequent congressional investigation of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service are in RG 173, Records of the Federal Communications Commission, and in RG 259, Records of the Board of War Communications. Records relating to monitoring and other activities similar to those performed by the Service are in RG 208, Records of the Office of War Information, and in RG 263, Records of the Central Intelligence Agency.

RECORDS OF THE FOREIGN BROADCAST INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

Central Files

These records were apparently maintained by the Mail and Files Section and its successors. The Section was established in 1941 to control correspondence, index and maintain files, and duplicate and distribute reports; in 1942 it was redesignated the Mail and Files Division. This Division was terminated in 1944 and its functions were transferred to the Processing and Duplicating Division. In 1945 the functions were assigned to the Distribution Division (occasionally known as the Administrative Service Division).

GENERAL RECORDS. 1941-46. 26 ft.

Chiefly correspondence, memoranda, and reports relating to the organization, functions, and activities of the Service from its beginning in 1941 until November 2, 1946, when the file was closed by the Central Intelligence Group. Arranged in accordance with a subject-numeric system developed from a scheme used by the FCC. As no classification scheme was found among the records, one was prepared by the National Archives (see appendix I). 1

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE. 1941-46. 1 ft.

Correspondence of FBIS officials with Members of Congress, officials of other Government agencies, editors, publishers, educational institutions, and private individuals relating to the activities of the Service. Most of the outgoing letters bear cross-reference notations to the general records described in entry 1. Arranged alphabetically by name of correspondent. 2

Transcriptions

TRANSCRIPTS OF MONITORED FOREIGN BROADCASTS. 1940-46. 355 ft.

English translations of foreign shortwave broadcasts, consisting of full texts, text excerpts, and summaries sent to the national office by typed transcript, teletype, and cable. Arranged alphabetically by name of transmitting city or radio station. For a list of radio stations under which these transcripts are filed, see appendix II. 3

INDEXES TO FOREIGN BROADCASTS. 1941-45. 3 ft.

Daily lists of broadcasts (Form FBIS-469) giving the station, direction, time, type of program, speaker, and language. The lists are divided into three groups: (1) broadcasts from major stations (e.g., London, Berlin, Rome, Tokyo); (2) broadcasts from clandestine stations; and (3) broadcasts from other stations. Each group is arranged by name of country or city and thereunder chronologically. 4

SOUND RECORDINGS. 1941-45. 190 ft.

Approximately 36,000 Memovox disks and 200 glass-base sound records. 5

ings of shortwave broadcasts transmitted from London, Berlin, Tokyo, Rome, Vichy, and other cities, and received by monitoring stations at Portland, Oreg., Kingsville, Tex., Silver Hill, Md., San Francisco, Calif., and Puerto Rico. Most of these broadcasts are in foreign languages and consist of news commentaries, speeches by important individuals from Axis and Allied countries, other propaganda items, and music. The recordings are arranged numerically.

INDEXES TO SOUND RECORDINGS. 1941-45. 29 ft.

The indexes are in two groups: (1) 5" x 8" log cards giving the record number, date, time, origin, destination of broadcast, language, and remarks about the program; arranged numerically; and (2) program sheets (2 ft.) giving some or all of the following data in the order mentioned: the monitor file number, frequency, station call letters, transmitting country, language, country beamed to, time, and case number; arranged by FBIS monitoring installation and thereunder chronologically.

Teletyped Records of Incoming Wires

Each incoming cable and wire begins with a 5-digit number to indicate the day of the week and the time of day the message was transmitted to Washington headquarters. The first digit represents the day of the week; the next two digits, the hour of the day counting 24 hours from midnight; and the last two digits, the number of minutes past the hour.

LONDON CABLES. Aug. 17, 1942-Jan. 22, 1943. 10 ft.

Partial or full texts of significant broadcasts emanating chiefly from Europe and Africa, which were intercepted by the FBIS monitoring installation in London and cabled to headquarters in Washington. Arranged chronologically.

"LONDON TRAFFIC." Aug. 1942. 1 ft.

Abstracts and occasional verbatim transcripts of monitored broadcasts emanating from various foreign stations, which were transmitted by teletype to the FBIS unit in New York by Press Wireless, Inc., in London. Arranged chronologically.

LONDON TELETYPE MESSAGES. Sept. 1946. 4 in.

These messages, which were transmitted to Washington headquarters, are transcribed on teletype sheets in roll form, with each roll representing a single day's messages. Unarranged.

SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, AND KINGSVILLE WIRES. Sept. 12-Dec. 12, 1942. 5 ft.

10

Partial or full texts of significant broadcasts originating chiefly in the Far East and the Soviet Union, which were teletyped to Washington by the San Francisco and Portland monitoring stations, and broadcasts originating chiefly in Latin America, which were transmitted by the Kingsville station. Arranged chronologically.

Teletyped Records of Outgoing Wires

The wires designated by the symbols A, B, C, D, E, S, X, and PM are direct FCC wires sent principally to Government agencies concerned with war propaganda. They consist of the more significant parts of the incoming wires and of the transcripts of broadcasts. Their content was selected according to the particular requirements of the agency to which they were teletyped.

"A" WIRES. Dec. 7, 1941-Dec. 31, 1946. 83 ft.

Teletyped records of wires sent to approximately 25 agencies, including the State, War, and Navy Departments and the Office of War Information, the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, the Office of Censorship, and the Office of Strategic Services. The Governments and agencies of Allied Nations, including the Philippine Commonwealth, also received these wires, which were designated during successive periods by the symbols FCC-1, FCC-2, etc.; FCC A1, FCC A2, etc.; FCC-L-1, FCC-L-2, etc.; FCC A1, FCC A2, etc.; and FBIS-L A1, FBIS-L A2, etc. The digits 1, 2, etc., indicate the serial order in which the wires were transmitted; the letter after the FCC or FBIS symbol indicates the monitoring station that is the source of the information transmitted (L for London, P for Portland, K for Kingsville, F for San Francisco, W for Washington). Arranged chronologically.

"B" WIRES. Oct. 25, 1941-Nov. 14, 1945. 58 ft.

Teletyped records of wires sent to the Office of War Information in Washington and New York giving propaganda summaries and texts. They are identified during successive periods by the symbols FCC 1, FCC 2, etc.; WFCC 1, WFCC 2, etc.; and FCCW B1, FCCW B2, etc. Arranged chronologically.

"C" WIRES. Apr. 30, 1942-Dec. 31, 1946. 18 ft.

Teletyped records of wires sent to the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs giving information on Latin America. They are identified by the symbols FCCIA-1, FCCIA-2; FCC C1, FCC C2; and FBIS-W C1, FBIS-W C2, successively. Arranged chronologically.

"D" WIRES. Mar. 16, 1943-July 21, 1945. 2 ft.

Teletyped records of wires sent to the British Ministry of Information giving Far East data. They are identified by the symbols FB1, FB2, etc.; and PRE #1, PRE #2, etc. In addition to these symbols, the wires carried the same form of day, hour, and minute designations as those used in the incoming wires. Arranged chronologically, with gaps.

"E" WIRES. June 2-Sept. 10, 1943. 4 in.

Teletyped records of wires sent to the Office of the Provost Marshal

General consisting of the texts or excerpts of broadcasts and messages sent by American prisoners of war and civilians interned by Axis Governments. They are identified by the symbols FCC E1, FCC E2, etc. Arranged chronologically.

"S" WIRES. Sept. 8-10, 1943. 2 in. 16

Teletyped records of wires sent to the State Department consisting of the texts or excerpts of broadcasts emanating from transmitting stations throughout the world and relating to the withdrawal of Italy from the war in September 1943. They are identified by the symbols FCC S1, FCC S2, etc. Arranged chronologically.

"X" WIRES. Sept. 8, 1943-Jan. 12, 1946. 4 ft. 17

Teletyped records of wires sent to the Office of War Information in San Francisco. Inaugurated in September 1943 at the request of the Propaganda Analysis Section of the Office of War Information (OWI), the wires carried, from FBIS headquarters in Washington to the OWI on the West Coast, selections of intercepts from European transmitters for use in counter-propaganda programs in the Far East. They are identified by the symbols FCC X1, FCC X2, etc. and later by FBIS X1, FBIS X2, etc. Arranged chronologically.

"PM" WIRES. Dec. 10, 1943-Aug. 30, 1945. 5 ft. 18

Teletyped records of wires sent by 24-hour teletype circuit linking the FBIS with the Office of the Provost Marshal General and consisting of messages from or allusions to American servicemen held captive by the enemy. These enemy radio broadcasts were designed to build up a listening audience in the United States. These wires are identified by the symbols FCC PML, FCC PM2, etc. Arranged chronologically.

Processed Reports, Summaries, Interpretations, and Other Issuances

DAILY REPORTS OF FOREIGN RADIO BROADCASTS. Sept. 4, 1941-Dec. 4, 1945. 42 ft. 19

Based on broadcasts intercepted by FCC engineers before 10 a. m., eastern war time, on the day of issue. During the period of optimum operation, each Daily Report was prepared in five parts: (1) key broadcasts; (2) highlights; (3) propaganda in Europe; (4) communiques; and (5) broadcasts by Germany, German-controlled stations, Japan, Italy, Great Britain, Australia, France, the French Antilles, the Soviet Union, Latin America, Turkey, Finland, Spain, Switzerland, Sweden, China, and clandestine stations. The first Saturday issue of the Daily Report appeared on December 6, 1941; none was printed on Sunday. For several months after January 1, 1943, the Daily Report, the Morning Preview (see entry 21), and the Daily Analysis of Propaganda Concerning Latin America (see entry 30) were filed together. On October 1, 1945, the Daily Report was divided into three sections: the Far Eastern Section, the European Section, and the Latin American Section. Publication ceased on December 4, 1945; on January 3, 1946, the preparation of reports on broadcasts was resumed, and after that date the three sections were issued as separate reports (see entries 24, 26, and 27). The series is arranged chronologically.

QUARTERLY REVIEW. ca. Mar. 1942. 1/2 in.

Contains a general analysis of radio propaganda from Axis and Allied Nations during the period from December 1941 to March 1, 1942. There is a table of contents. 20

MORNING PREVIEWS. Aug. 29-Dec. 30, 1942. 4 in.

Brief summaries of war events as revealed by radio intercepts, statements regarding enemy propaganda themes, and verbatim transcripts of one or more key broadcasts. They were published daily except Sunday for distribution before 11 a. m.; they were based on foreign broadcasts for the 24 hours preceding 8 a. m. of the day of issue. For several months after January 1, 1943, the Morning Previews were filed with the Daily Reports which they summarized. Arranged chronologically. 21

SPECIAL RELEASES. Jan. 30, 1942-Jan. 18, 1944. 10 in.

Issued irregularly as supplements to the Daily Report. They contain the translated and untranslated texts or excerpts of speeches delivered by notables, and reports of world radio reaction to significant events. Arranged chronologically. For a list of the Special Releases, see appendix III. 22

TABLES OF CONTENTS TO DAILY REPORTS. Aug.-Sept. 1945; Jan.-Dec. 1946. 4 in.

Issued daily. Arranged by month. 23

DAILY REPORTS, FAR EASTERN SECTION. Jan. 3-Dec. 31, 1946. 7 ft. 24

Each report contains some or all of the following material, as listed in its table of contents: "Special Reports" and excerpts or summaries from broadcasts emanating from Japan, Free China, Occupied China, the Philippines, the Netherlands East Indies, French Indo-China, Thailand, India, Australia, and other countries. Arranged numerically (Nos. 1-259).

INDEXES TO THE FAR EASTERN SECTION OF THE DAILY REPORT. Jan. 1, 1945-Oct. 31, 1946. 4 in.

These indexes to subjects and geographic areas were usually prepared monthly. Arranged chronologically. Included also is a glossary in two parts: Part I, issued on April 24, 1945, contains names and terms frequently used in Japanese radio references to Government offices and positions, organizations, movements, and corps; and Part II, issued on September 15, 1945, contains coined phrases and currently used words and terms. 25

DAILY REPORTS, EUROPEAN SECTION. Jan. 3-Dec. 31, 1946. 7 ft. 26

Based on broadcasts monitored before 8 a. m. of the day of issue. Each report contains some or all of the following material, as listed in its table of contents: "Key Broadcasts" and excerpts or summaries of French, Belgian, Dutch, Italian, Russian, Balkan, Eastern European, German, Austrian, Greek, Scandinavian, Spanish, and Portuguese transmitters. Arranged numerically (Nos. 1-259).

DAILY REPORTS, LATIN AMERICAN SECTION. Jan. 9-Dec. 31, 1946. 3 ft. 27

Based on broadcasts monitored before 8 a. m. of the day of issue. Each report contains some or all of the following material, as listed in its table of contents: "Key Broadcasts" and excerpts or summaries of monitored broadcasts from Argentina, the Caribbean area and Mexico, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Uruguay, and other Latin American countries. Arranged numerically (Nos. 1-254).

DAILY DIGESTS OF OFFICIAL SHORTWAVE BROADCASTS BEAMED TO NORTH AMERICA. Sept. 8-Nov. 17, 1941. 8 in. 28

Reports based on shortwave broadcasts originating in Axis and Allied countries and recorded by FCC engineers before 1 a. m. of the day of issue. The information in most of the issues was listed in two tables of contents: in the first, according to the sources of the broadcasts; and in the second, according to the areas of the world to which the broadcasts related. Arranged chronologically.

DAILY DIGESTS OF OFFICIAL SHORTWAVE BROADCASTS BEAMED TO LATIN AMERICA. Sept. 29-Nov. 17, 1941. 4 in. 29

Reports based on broadcasts originating in Germany, Italy, and France. The information in most of the issues was listed in a similar manner to that of the issuance described in entry 28. Arranged chronologically.

DAILY ANALYSES OF PROPAGANDA CONCERNING LATIN AMERICA. Aug. 5, 1942-May 14, 1943. 3 in. 30

Reports, each consisting of four parts: (A) References to Inter-American Affairs, (B) Military Operations, (C) International Events, and (D) Broadcasts From the Other American Republics. The Monday issue contains the Daily Analysis for that day as well as for the preceding Saturday and Sunday. After December 31, 1942, these issuances are filed with the Daily Reports of Foreign Radio Broadcasts (see entry 19). Arranged chronologically.

WEEKLY ANALYSES OF SHORTWAVE NEWS AND PROPAGANDA CONCERNING LATIN AMERICA. May 25-Aug. 10, 1943. 1 in. 31

Contain the substance of broadcasts by Axis and Latin American transmitters and summaries of broadcasts dealing with special events. This issuance was the successor to the Daily Analysis of Propaganda Concerning Latin America. Arranged numerically (Nos. 1-12).

WEEKLY REVIEWS OF OFFICIAL FOREIGN BROADCASTS. Dec. 8, 1941-Apr. 29, 1944. 3 ft. 32

Contain brief analyses of significant propaganda trends and news intelligence reflected in world radio broadcasts. The analyzed parts of the broadcasts relate to major events, military fronts, and regions in the United States, Latin America, Great Britain, Central Europe, South Europe, the Balkans, the Soviet Union, the Near East, the Middle East, and the Far East. This issuance was originally entitled Weekly Analysis of Official Foreign Broadcasts. Arranged numerically (Nos. 1-126).

CORRESPONDENCE RELATING TO MONITORING OPERATIONS IN NORTH AFRICA. 1942-43. 4 in.

Interoffice communications and correspondence with the Psychological Warfare Branch of the Allied Forces Headquarters, the War Department, and the Office of War Information relating to the establishment and operation of a monitoring station in Algiers. (The FBIS personnel in Algiers were assigned to the Psychological Warfare Branch.) Arranged chronologically. 62

CORRESPONDENCE RELATING TO DENVER MONITORING OPERATIONS. 1943. 2 in. 63

In two parts: (1) interoffice memoranda and correspondence with field correspondents at San Francisco and Denver relating to the establishment of monitoring operations at Denver to record Japanese broadcasts emanating from Tokyo; and (2) correspondence between Ken M. Iseri, Chief Translator at the Denver installation, and the Washington, San Francisco, and Portland installations relating chiefly to the recruitment of personnel. Each part is arranged chronologically.

LETTERS RECEIVED FROM THE CHIEF FIELD CORRESPONDENT IN CHARGE OF MONITORING OPERATIONS IN HONOLULU, T. H. 1944. 2 in. 64

Relate chiefly to the establishment of FBIS listening posts in the South Pacific area. Also included are a report of a survey of the Hawaiian Islands to determine the best location for a listening post; a report, map, and blueprints relating to the Kauai site for Broadcast Recording Unit operations; and informal activity reports. Arranged chronologically.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH FIELD INSTALLATIONS. 1946. 4 ft. 65

Relates mainly to the exchange of news intelligence, monitoring activities, and administrative matters of the FBIS during the period when it was successively a part of the War Department's Military Intelligence Division and the Central Intelligence Group of the National Intelligence Authority. The correspondence is in five parts, each divided into incoming and outgoing messages and thereunder arranged chronologically: (1) messages to and from Cairo; (2) messages to and from Kauai and Guam; (3) messages to and from Portland, Oreg.; (4) messages to London by Western Union and the U. S. Army Signal Corps; and (5) messages to and from Tokyo. A few domestic teletype messages containing information on program schedules, personnel administration, and deficiencies in monitoring equipment are filed at the end of the series.

LETTERS OF COMMENT ON SERVICES. 1941-43. 5 in. 66

Photostatic copies of letters received by the Chairman of the FCC, the Director of the FBMS (later the FBIS), and division chiefs from the Departments of State, War, the Navy, Commerce, and Justice; the Office of War Information, the Board of Economic Warfare, the Office of Strategic Services, the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, and agencies of Allied Governments containing commendatory remarks on the issuances of the Service or requests for special services. Copies of the replies are filed with several of the incoming letters. Arranged by name of agency.

RECORDS RELATING TO SOUTH AMERICAN RECEPTION TESTS. Jan. 1944. 1 in. 67

Reports of Broadcast Recording Unit engineers at Hato Rey, P. R., Silver Hill, Md., Kingsville, Tex., and Hayward, Calif.; texts of the test broadcasts, with a tabulation of the quality from an editorial standpoint; and a report on the results of the tests. Unarranged.

RECORDS RELATING TO LIAISON WITH OTHER GOVERNMENT AGENCIES. 1942-45. 5 in. 68

Incoming and outgoing correspondence, together with related memoranda, pertaining to liaison with other agencies of the Federal Government (the Foreign Economic Administration, the Office of War Information, the Office of Strategic Services, and others) and with agencies of Allied Governments. The records relate mainly to monitoring activities, cooperative ventures, radio intelligence needs, and the exchange and distribution of information. Arranged by agency.

RECORDS RELATING TO PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION. 1941-43. 10 in. 69

Memoranda, correspondence, and personnel forms relating to such actions as appointments, transfers, promotions, changes in pay status, recommendations for employment, and resignations. Arranged alphabetically by name of employee.

RECORDS RELATING TO DEFERMENT OF EMPLOYEES. 1942-44. 10 in. 70

As these records of the Agency [FCC] Committee on Deferment of Government Employees relate to FBIS personnel, they were maintained or inherited by the Office of the Director. They include correspondence between the Selective Service local boards and the committee, affidavits and forms prepared by the agency and the individual requesting or supporting a claim for occupational deferment, and related internal memoranda. General memoranda on deferment procedures and biographical sketches dealing with a number of FBIS employees are filed at the end of the series. Arranged alphabetically by name of employee.

REPORTS RECEIVED FROM THE OFFICE OF STRATEGIC SERVICES. 1944-45. 1 in. 71

As these reports relate to the interception of foreign broadcasts, copies were sent to Edwin W. Hullinger, Assistant Director of the FCC, and were retained by the FBIS. Arranged chronologically.

Records of the Office of the Chief Editor

This Office was established in January 1945 under the direction of G. Ellis Porter who, as Chief Editor, was responsible for policy determinations in the selection of broadcast data and for the manner in which they would be made available. In order to effectively discharge these responsibilities, Mr. Porter was assigned the following duties: (1) to maintain liaison with officers and agencies of the United States and other United Nations in order to determine the need for broadcast material; (2) to determine the types of broadcast materials to be made available, the form or style in which they would appear, and the methods of dissemination; (3) to prepare editorial directives and to confer with chiefs of divisions and personnel preparing broadcast material; (4) to examine, analyze, and appraise broadcast material prepared by individuals in order to secure compliance with editorial policies; and (5) to collaborate with the Chief of the Monitoring Division in deciding which types of data were to be collected by field offices.

RECORDS OF G. ELLIS PORTER, CHIEF EDITOR. 1945. 1 ft.

72

Editorial directives (Nos. 1 to 5), incoming and outgoing memoranda, cables, teletype messages, and correspondence pertaining to (1) the preparation and distribution of special types of broadcast materials other than the regular publications and wire services furnished to client Government departments and war agencies; (2) liaison with other Government agencies such as the War Department, the Foreign Economic Administration, the Office of Inter-American Affairs, the Navy Department, the Office of Strategic Services, and the Office of War Information; and (3) the personnel needs and operating problems of field installations. Arranged by subject or type of material.

Records of the Analysis Division

The Analysis Division was set up as a section within the FBMS in the fall of 1941 and was given divisional status shortly thereafter. It provided interpretations and appraisals of propaganda emanating from foreign countries, and it attempted to determine the attitudes and strategy of these countries. Through the issuance of various reports, which were distributed to appropriate agencies upon request, the Division made suggestions and predictions and furnished other information concerning changes in the political, economic, or military policies of these countries.

Goodwin Watson was Director of the Division from November 15, 1941, until November 15, 1943, when he was succeeded by Theodore Newcomb. The Division was terminated in 1944 by Director Robert D. Leigh.

GENERAL RECORDS (SERIES I). 1941-44. 2 ft.

73

Interoffice and intraoffice memoranda relating to divisional organization, operating procedures, budgets, issuances, and personnel; reports and correspondence with field offices and other Government agencies relating to the operations of the Division; and miscellaneous reference materials. Arranged by subject or type of material.

GENERAL RECORDS (SERIES II). 1941-44. 2 ft.

74

Consist mainly of reports and transcripts pertaining to such significant matters as the Casablanca Conference, the bombing of Japan, Axis war aims, and the effects of Axis radio propaganda on the morale of the United States. Included are memoranda, cables, and correspondence relating to operating procedures, liaison with the London Office, and personnel recruitment; reports dealing with proposed coding systems for several of the Division's sections; copies of suspect anti-American domestic radio broadcasts; and a collection of issuances prepared by the Bureau of Intelligence, OWI. Arranged by subject or type of material.

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE. 1941-43. 5 in.

Correspondence with key officials of Government agencies, publishers, educational and professional institutions, and private individuals relating chiefly to employment of personnel and the interchange of articles and publications. Included is some personal correspondence of Goodwin Watson, Chief of the Division. Arranged alphabetically by name of correspondent.

RECORDS RELATING TO THE DISTRIBUTION OF REPORTS. 1941-44. 3 ft.

Consist chiefly of reports, forms, and related correspondence dealing with the use of FBIS issuances by Federal and Allied agencies. The records are in four groups: (1) correspondence relating to requests for and information about issuances, arranged chronologically; (2) similar correspondence to that in group 1, arranged alphabetically by name of agency; (3) forms, arranged by type of issuance; and (4) correspondence relating to the value and use of issuances, arranged alphabetically by name of agency.

SUMMARIES OF SPECIAL REQUESTS. 1942-43. 4 in.

Tabulations of information furnished to various agencies upon request, showing the date of the request, the agency and person requesting the information, the nature of the request, the section filling the request, the time involved, and the disposition of the request. Also included are weekly tabulations of the number of requests fulfilled. Arranged by month.

RECORDS RELATING TO PERSONNEL. 1942-44. 3 in.

Memoranda and correspondence with other Government agencies and educational institutions relating mainly to personnel administration and to staffing the units within the Division. Arranged by subject. A folder containing papers of Goodwin Watson relating to a congressional investigation of several FBIS employees is filed at the end of the series.

Records of the Monitoring Division

The monitoring of shortwave broadcasts had its beginning in the Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Unit, National Defense Operations Section (later known as the Radio Intelligence Division), within the Field Division, Engineering Department, FCC, where transmissions of foreign voice broadcasts were recorded on a small scale. After the establishment of the Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service, on February 26, 1941, this activity was assigned to the newly created Monitoring Section. After the name of the Service was changed to the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, the Monitoring Section operated within the Report Division. The first significant organizational change occurred in February 1943 when the Monitoring Section, including the monitors and clerks (but not the editors), was transferred from the Report Division to the Translation Division, which was renamed the Monitoring and Translation Division, with L. Zychlinski as Chief. The Report Division was retitled the News and Intelligence Division, with Thomas B. Grandin as Chief. In order to coordinate fully the editorial needs of the News and Intelligence Division with the actual production of monitors' summaries and texts, Douglas Orangers of this Division was designated the Monitoring Executive. In carrying out the policies and directives of his Chief, he was responsible for instructing monitors in the preparation of summaries and in the editorial aspects of monitoring. In executing the policies and instructions of the Division Director, Mr. Orangers was responsible for preparing requests for engineering coverage, composing line schedules, assigning individual monitors to particular programs, and administering direction in such matters as filing and messenger service.

On January 16, 1945, under an organizational plan approved by the FCC, the monitoring unit was given divisional status. The Monitoring Division was responsible for establishing and supervising the monitoring stations and maintaining and distributing technical equipment.

RECORDS RELATING TO MONITORING OPERATIONS. 1944-45. 1 ft. 79

Memoranda and reports pertaining to monitoring services and inter-divisional matters; instructional memoranda and guidebooks for monitors and clerks; memoranda dealing with reception interference and other technical difficulties; teletype messages containing information on the activity of foreign transmitters and clandestine stations; log records of programs checked and monitored by the Portland and San Francisco listening posts; samples of monitoring and translation errors; and miscellaneous reference materials on international broadcasting. Arranged by subject or type of material.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH FIELD INSTALLATIONS. 1944-45. 2 ft. 80

Incoming and outgoing correspondence and teletype messages between the national office and FBIS units in Portland, Oreg., San Francisco, Calif., Silver Hill, Md., London, Cairo, and Kauai, T. H., relating mainly to monitoring policies and administration. Arranged by geographical location of the installation.

CABLES SENT TO LONDON ("TR WIRE MESSAGES"). 1944-45. 2 ft. 81

Copies of outgoing cables to the London installation relating chiefly to monitoring operations and the documentation of its administrative direction by the Division. Arranged chronologically.

RECORDS RELATING TO PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION. 1944-45. 8 in. 82

Chiefly correspondence and memoranda relating to such personnel matters as staffing plans, position assignments for monitors and clerks, lists of personnel at field installations, and applications for employment. Arranged by subject or type of material.

RECORDS RELATING TO THE STAFFING OF THE JAPANESE TRANSLATION SECTION.
1942-45. 4 in. 83

Records showing the efforts of the FBIS to obtain Japanese monitors and translators from the various War Relocation Authority relocation centers. Included are memoranda, correspondence with applicants, records of interview and test results, and testing materials. Arranged by name of relocation center or by type of material.

REPORTS ON RUSSIAN WEATHER. ca. Mar. 1946. 5 in. 84

Teletype messages in code which were transmitted to Ben H. Hall, Chief of the Monitoring Division. Unarranged.

Records of the News and Intelligence Division

In accordance with a reorganization plan approved by the Federal Communications Commission, the Report Division was terminated on February 26, 1943, and the News and Intelligence Division was established. It comprised a Wire Service Section (the successor to the News Service Section, Report Division) and a Publications Section (the successor to the Publications Section, Report Division).

The function of the News and Intelligence Division was to provide, by wire service, extensive general and specialized up-to-the-minute reports of news, intelligence, and propaganda selected from broadcasts originating in foreign countries for (1) war units desiring information useful in the conduct of military operations, such as the Military Intelligence Service, the Office of Naval Intelligence, the Air Intelligence Service, the Air Transport Command, and the Joint Intelligence Committee of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; (2) organizations engaged in political and economic warfare, such as the State Department and the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs; and (3) war units specializing in psychological warfare and counter-propaganda, such as the Office of War Information and the Army's Psychological Warfare Branch.

The Division was directed successively by Thomas B. Grandin, M. Stewart Hensley, and Arthur M. Goul. It was terminated by the FCC on January 16, 1945, and responsibility for its activities was divided between the Office of the Chief Editor and the Distribution Division.

GENERAL RECORDS. 1944. 4 ft. 85

Consist chiefly of correspondence (teletypes, cables, telegrams, and letters), interoffice and intraoffice memoranda, and reports dealing primarily with the administrative and operating activities of the Division. The records are in two groups: the first, apparently maintained by M. Stewart Hensley; and the second, maintained by Arthur M. Goul; each group is arranged according to a subject-numeric scheme. A guide to Mr. Hensley's file, prepared by the National Archives and Records

Service, appears as appendix VI. The arrangement of Mr. Goul's file is somewhat similar to that of Mr. Hensley's.

RECORDS OF THOMAS B. GRANDIN. 1942-44. 10 in. 86

Relate to monitoring and editorial procedures, broadcast intelligence, and personnel and equipment requirements. The records consist chiefly of correspondence with Peter C. Rhodes, Chief Field Officer in the London Bureau, and Spencer Williams, Chief Field Correspondent in the San Francisco Post; copies of memoranda sent by M. Stewart Hensley, Chief of the Wire Service Section, to editors of the "A" and "B" Wires relating to the dissemination of news and intelligence to various agencies; reports received from the U. S. Office of Censorship in London; contractual papers pertaining to telephone and telegraph facilities in London; and circulation lists for FBIS issuances. Arranged by subject or type of material.

OFFICE FILES OF M. STEWART HENSLEY. 1941-45. 3 ft. 87

Relate chiefly to the organization, administration, and operations of the San Francisco, Calif., Portland, Oreg., Kingsville, Tex., and Denver, Colo., field installations. Included are correspondence with the Secretary of the FCC, the Director of the FBIS, top officials of the Washington and field offices, officials of other Government agencies, and contractors and private individuals; a memorandum dated September 16, 1943, relating to the agreement between the FBIS and the Office of War Information in regard to delegated responsibilities and cooperative arrangements; procedural manuals for transcribers and stenographers; correspondence with firms providing utilities and other services; miscellaneous property and supply records; correspondence with Japanese translators, together with reports and biographical data; correspondence with FBIS personnel and the Civil Service Commission dealing with appointments, assignments, transfers, resignations, and similar matters; and a collection of summaries of broadcasts emanating from Japan during the period August-September 1941. Arranged by name of individual, subject, or type of material.

MESSAGES DEALING WITH BALKAN NEWS. Feb.-Apr. 1944. 8 in. 88

Radiograms sent by Peter C. Rhodes to headquarters in Washington, D. C., summarizing monitored broadcasts emanating from Radio Sofia, Belgrade, Athens, and Bucharest. Arranged chronologically.

LISTS AND REPORTS PERTAINING TO AMERICAN PRISONERS OF WAR. 1944-45. 89
3 in.

These records are in two groups, each arranged chronologically: (1) monthly lists of prisoners (based on monitored European enemy radio broadcasts), giving their ranks and service, service numbers, home addresses, and the source and date of the broadcasts; and (2) reports received from the Vancouver Frequency Monitoring Centre, Radio Division, Department of Transport, containing transcriptions of messages from American prisoners of war in Japan, together with their names and addresses.

Records of the Distribution Division

The Distribution Division was set up by the FCC on January 16, 1945. Under the direction of Stephen Green, the Division was responsible for (1) coordinating and distributing broadcast material to client agencies; (2) processing and distributing reports, transcripts, publications, and correspondence; and (3) collecting, arranging, and distributing, to headquarters and field installations, maps, gazetteers, dictionaries, glossaries, and other reference materials needed by the staff. The Division comprised an Office of the Chief, an Intelligence Branch (consisting of the Wire Service and Teletype Sections), an Administrative Services Section, and an Information Center. This Division apparently continued its activities after the FBIS was transferred from the FCC to the War Department.

GENERAL RECORDS OF THE DISTRIBUTION DIVISION. 1944-45. 1 ft. 90

Consist chiefly of interoffice and intraoffice memoranda, international cables, and correspondence with field offices relating to administrative procedures, monitoring operations, wire services, and interdivisional matters. Arranged according to a subject-numeric classification scheme which appears to be patterned after the one used by M. Stewart Hensley (see appendix VI).

CORRESPONDENCE WITH FIELD OFFICES. Jan.-June 1945. 1 ft. 91

Teletype messages exchanged with the San Francisco, Portland, and London offices relating chiefly to the transmission of overseas news, operating procedures, and administrative matters. Arranged by name of city and thereunder divided into incoming and outgoing messages, which are arranged chronologically.

Records of the Broadcast Recording Unit

The Broadcast Recording Unit was organized early in 1942 as the successor to the Engineering Division, which had been established in 1941 to handle the technical problems in the national and field offices of the FBMS. Although the operations of the Unit were under the direction of the FBIS, its administrative activities and technical standards were supervised by the Radio Intelligence Division of the Engineering Department, Federal Communications Commission.

RECORDS OF GEORGE E. STERLING. 1941-44. 2 ft. 92

George E. Sterling was Chief of the National Defense Operations Section, Engineering Department, FCC, and later Chief of the Radio Intelligence Division. These records relate to the organization, function, and activities of the Broadcast Recording Unit, created in connection with Mr. Sterling's supervision of the Unit. Included are interoffice and intraoffice memoranda relating to the field operations of the Unit; reports of various surveys among field units, indicating the efficiency of equipment and the adequacy of foreign shortwave broadcast reception; procedural memoranda pertaining to the coding and reporting of broadcasts; listings of foreign shortwave broadcasting stations with identifying code numbers; a report on South American Reception Tests (1944); miscellaneous fiscal papers relating to the purchase of equipment, supplies, and services; and biographical sketches of personnel of the Unit and of the Radio Intelligence Division. Arranged by subject or type of material.

Records of Field Offices

ADMINISTRATIVE RECORDS OF THE SAN FRANCISCO OFFICE. 1942-45. 9 in. 93

These records, maintained successively by Spencer Williams and Elliot Tarbell as Chief Field Correspondent, consist mainly of correspondence with executives in the Washington Office, documenting most of the functions and activities of the San Francisco Office; reports and memoranda pertaining to budgetary estimates and personnel management; and miscellaneous fiscal materials such as travel vouchers, payroll data, and purchase authorizations. Arranged by subject or type of material.

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SAN FRANCISCO OFFICE. 1943-45. 5 in. 94

Correspondence with agencies of the Federal and Allied Governments and with private firms relating to the exchange of news intelligence and the procurement of equipment, supplies, and services. Also included is a report (May 1944, 21 p.) on how the Japanese characterize the American soldier in broadcasts prepared for Japanese audiences. The correspondence is arranged alphabetically by name of agency or firm.

ADMINISTRATIVE RECORDS OF THE KINGSVILLE, TEX., OFFICE. 1942-44. 5 in. 95

These records, apparently maintained by Elliot Tarbell as Chief Field Correspondent, document the activities of this listening post. They consist of correspondence with the Washington Office pertaining to monitoring operations; instructional memoranda for the staff; contractual records, including bids for utility services and vouchers for the purchase of equipment, supplies, and services; and correspondence relating to the recruitment of personnel. Arranged by subject or type of material.

APPENDIX II

List of Radio Stations Under Which Transcripts Are Filed (Entry 3)

The symbols in the second column indicate the classification assigned to each station by the FBIS either on a geographic basis or as a clandestine station. The symbols have been arbitrarily assigned to represent the following FBIS classifications: EA--Europe, Near East, Middle East, and Africa; LA--Latin America; FE--Far East; and C--Clandestine. Stations for which no symbols are given do not appear on lists of each class of station prepared by the FBIS. The dates are those of the transcripts.
